Acknowledgments to the Tenth Edition

This is the Tenth Edition of the Senior Citizens Handbook, which has been prepared by the Project Grace Committee as a joint effort of the Young Lawyers Division and the Elder Law Section of the North Carolina Bar Association. The handbook was first written and published by the Law and Aging Committee of the Young Lawyers Division in 1983 and has been updated regularly.

This handbook follows the format of previous editions, which have been well received as a valuable resource for North Carolina seniors, their families, their caregivers, and others throughout North Carolina assisting seniors. The committee has updated the handbook to reflect changes in the law and to expand on some of the information provided in the previous editions.

We wish to thank the North Carolina Bar Association Foundation Endowment for its generous financial support for this project.

All lawyers contributing to this effort are members of either the Young Lawyers Division or the Elder Law Section of the North Carolina Bar Association. In addition to the Project Grace Committee which prepared this handbook, the Young Lawyers Division and Elder Law Section have other committees comprised of lawyers who volunteer their time and effort to benefit seniors and the general public in areas such as Will and Advanced Directive Clinics, legal aid support, youth education, child advocacy and protection, senior advocacy and protection as well as disaster relief. The Young Lawyers Division and Elder Law Section also function to aid lawyers in improving their skills and competence so that they will be better able to serve both their clients and the public interest.

Young Lawyers Division & Elder Law Section
North Carolina Bar Association
P.O. Box 3688
Cary, NC 27519
(919) 677-0561
1-800-662-7407
Table of Contents

1 | Acknowledgements to the Tenth Edition
5 | Introduction

Money Matters | 7
7 | Social Security, Retirement Benefits and Disability Benefits
10 | Federal Supplement Assistance Program (Former Food Stamps Program)
10 | Bank Accounts
11 | Income Taxes
12 | Individual Retirement Accounts
12 | Private Retirement Plans

Health Care | 13
13 | Medicare
15 | Coverage Under Medicare Advantage, Medicare Part D and Medigap Plans
16 | Medicaid
18 | Nursing Homes
21 | Drugs
21 | Patients’ Rights In Nursing Homes
24 | Patients’ Rights In Hospitals
24 | Confidentiality
25 | Advance Directives
27 | Health and Life Insurance

Rights and Protections | 29
29 | The Con Game
30 | Identity Theft
32 | Unwanted Solicitation: Phone Calls and Junk Mail
32 | Age Discrimination
33 | Voting Rights
34 | Housing
36 | Protection Against Crime
38 | Abuse and Neglect

Planning for the Future | 41
41 | Powers of Attorney and Living Wills
42 | Wills and Disposition of Property
44 | Probate and Estate Administration
45 | Living Trusts
46 | Testamentary Trusts
46 | Guardianship
47 | Gift, Estate and Inheritance Taxes
47 | Veterans Affairs
48 | Where To Call For Help

Legal Services | 49

Glossary of Common Terms | 53
Introduction

Programs for and rights of older adults are often confusing. Special programs and protections are available, but many older adults are not aware of them and do not know where to seek additional information concerning programs and services for seniors.

This handbook provides basic information about rights and opportunities of older adults and warns of dangers confronting the elderly. More information on these issues can be found on the Internet at the Division of Aging’s website at www.dhhs.state.nc.us/aging. Internet access can be obtained at many local libraries and senior centers.

This handbook is intended to be a brief overview of some of the laws affecting North Carolina’s senior citizens. It is not intended to replace the advice of a lawyer. The facts of your individual situation will affect how the law applies to you. You should seek the advice of an attorney when making any important legal decision and never rely solely on this booklet. If you cannot afford to hire an attorney or do not know any attorneys, the last section of this handbook contains a list of places to contact for legal advice and assistance. Please remember that laws can change rapidly, and you should always check to make sure that the information in this handbook is still current.

Special Notice For 2012 Revision

This Tenth Edition of the Senior Citizens Handbook was revised in 2012. While the NCBA Young Lawyers Division and Elder Law Section have made every effort to verify the accuracy of information contained in the handbook at the time of publication, the laws and regulations in this area change frequently. As a result, some information included in the handbook, particularly benefit eligibility limits, dollar amounts, and tax rates, may change in the future. It is important that you never rely solely on this handbook for information and that you seek the advice of a lawyer before making any legal decision.
Social Security,
Retirement Benefits
and Disability Benefits

The official name for the law that set up our Social Security program in 1935 is the “Federal Insurance Contribution Act.” The goal of our Social Security system is to provide financial assistance and health care for the elderly, the disabled, the survivors of deceased workers and individuals with low incomes. Social Security taxes (referred to as FICA on some paychecks) finance all Social Security benefits, including retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare.

Eligibility For Social Security:
Whether or not you are eligible for Social Security benefits depends on how long you have been working and paying Social Security taxes. The entire time you are working you are earning Social Security “credits.” In 2012, you must earn $1,130 in covered earnings to receive one credit; $4,520 must be earned to receive the maximum four credits per year. If you are like most people, you will earn many more “credits” than you need to actually qualify for Social Security benefits.

Retirement Benefits:
To qualify for retirement benefits, you must meet the following requirements:

1. You must apply for benefits – enrollment is not automatic. You can apply by calling 1-800-772-1213 (1-800-325-0778 if you are deaf or hard of hearing). You can also apply in person by setting up an appointment at your local Social Security office or apply on-line by completing an Internet application at www.ssa.gov;

2. You must have generally worked at least 10 years and earned at least 40 “credits” if you were born after 1929 (lower “credit” requirements apply to individuals born before 1929. In addition, special rules allow divorced spouses without sufficient credits of their own to receive retirement benefits based on their former spouse’s credit earnings if they were married for at least 10 years);

3. You must be at least 62 years old. The amount of your benefits will depend on your average earnings over your working career, and the age you elect to start receiving your benefits. (The month you elect to start receiving benefits may also impact the amount of benefits paid in some cases.) If you start your retirement benefits at age 62 (the earliest possible retirement age and often referred to as “early retirement”) your benefit will be lower than if you waited until a later age. Full retirement age is 65 for persons born in 1937 or earlier and gradually increases to age 67 for those born in 1960 or later as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year of Birth</th>
<th>Full Retirement Age</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1937 or earlier</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1938</td>
<td>65 and 2 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1939</td>
<td>65 and 4 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1940</td>
<td>65 and 6 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1941</td>
<td>65 and 8 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1942</td>
<td>65 and 10 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1943-1954</td>
<td>66</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1955</td>
<td>66 and 2 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1956</td>
<td>66 and 4 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1957</td>
<td>66 and 6 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1958</td>
<td>66 and 8 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1959</td>
<td>66 and 10 months</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1960 and later</td>
<td>67</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Social Security Administration will mail you a Social Security Statement each year approximately three months before your birthday. The Statement provides an estimate of your retirement benefits at age 62 (early retirement), full retirement age, or age 70. You can also request an Estimate Statement by calling the toll-free Social Security number (1-800-772-1213) weekdays 7 a.m.-7 p.m. or your local Social Security office.

Not everyone retires at full retirement age. You may decide to continue working full time beyond that time. In that case, you can increase your Social Security benefit in two ways.

- Each additional year you work adds another year of earnings to your Social Security record. Higher lifetime earnings may result in higher benefits when you retire.
- In addition, if you choose to delay receiving retirement benefits, your benefit will be increased by a certain percentage. These increases will be added in automatically from the time you reach your full retirement age until you start taking your benefits, or you reach age 70. The percentage varies depending on your year of birth. See the chart below for the increase that will apply to you:
Increase for Delayed Retirement:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year of Birth</th>
<th>Yearly Rate of Increase</th>
<th>Monthly Rate of Increase</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1933-1934</td>
<td>5.5%</td>
<td>11/24 of 1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1935-1936</td>
<td>6.0%</td>
<td>1/2 of 1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1937-1938</td>
<td>6.5%</td>
<td>13/24 of 1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1939-1940</td>
<td>7.0%</td>
<td>7/12 of 1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1941-1942</td>
<td>7.5%</td>
<td>5/8 of 1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1943 or later</td>
<td>8.0%</td>
<td>2/3 of 1%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: Persons born on January 1 of any year should refer to the rate of increase for the previous year.

If you do elect to delay (applying for) retirement benefits, you should still apply for Medicare at age 65. In some cases, medical insurance costs more if you apply after age 65. Because the rules regarding Social Security benefits are complicated, it is often a good idea to contact the Social Security Administration the year before the year you wish to actually retire.

Disability Benefits:
To qualify for disability benefits, you must be unable to work due to a physical or mental impairment that either (1) is expected to result in death; or (2) is expected to keep you from doing "substantial" gainful employment for at least 12 months. The rules for deciding whether you have a disability that triggers payment of Social Security disability benefits are complex. The fact that you may qualify for disability benefits from private plans or other government agencies does not mean that you will automatically be eligible for Social Security disability benefits. You should consult a lawyer who is experienced with Social Security disability claims if you want to make a claim for these benefits. To receive Social Security disability benefits, you must meet the following requirements:

1. You must apply for benefits by telephone, online or by setting up an appointment at your local Social Security office.

2. You must have worked and earned enough “credits.” To find out how many credits you need to qualify, contact your local Social Security office or visit www.ssa.gov.

What If Your Disability Application Is Denied?
Many applications for disability are denied at the first level of review. Even if you are denied, you might still be disabled. You should appeal your application and ask the Social Security office to review your case. You have the right to appeal your application within 60 days of the date of the denial of your claim. It is important to appeal your claim within the 60 day period because, if you do not, your case will start over and you may lose any right to back benefits accumulated while your claim is pending. Many claimants are denied once. The second level is the hearing level in front of an administrative law judge (ALJ). This is the time you can appear and testify as to your impairments. There are appeal levels beyond the hearing level as well. You should consult a lawyer experienced with Social Security disability cases if your initial application is denied.

Working After Retirement Or Disability Payments Have Started:
Retirement Benefits – After retirement, you may want to go back to work on a full-time or a part-time basis. If you return to work after reaching your full retirement age, you can generally work without any reduction in your monthly benefit, no matter how much you earn. If you return to work before reaching your full retirement age, your retirement benefits will be reduced if your earnings are over the annual limit ($14,640 in 2012). If you earn more than the annual limit in a year before the year in which you reach full retirement age, your Social Security benefits will be reduced by $1 for every $2 earned over the annual limit. In the year you reach your full retirement age, your benefits will be reduced $1 for every $3 you earn over a different limit ($38,880 in 2012) until the month you reach full retirement age. Then you can work without any reduction in the amount of your monthly benefit, no matter how much you earn. You should keep in mind, however, that you may be subject to income taxes on Social Security benefits if you have substantial income in addition to your retirement benefits.

Disability Benefits – If you are receiving disability benefits, you are entitled to work for a “trial period” of up to nine months without having your benefits stopped or reduced, as long as you report your work and continue to have a disabling impairment. There is no limit on the income you can earn during this nine-month trial period. After these nine months, however, Social Security will review your earnings to see if they are “substantial.” If they are substantial, Social Security may regard you as no longer qualifying as disabled and may sever or reduce your benefits. There are additional rules about extending your period of eligibility. Usually monthly earnings of $1,110 in 2012 or more are considered “substantial” for disability benefits purposes. Note: this amount changes periodically; also, there are different rules for a “trial work” period. Therefore, it is imperative that you consult www.ssa.gov if you have questions.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI):
The Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program is also administered by the Social Security Administration. The goal of the SSI program is to provide monthly income to the elderly, the blind and the disabled. You can receive SSI checks even if you have never worked or do not qualify for Social Security for some reason. In addition, you can receive both SSI and Social Security benefits as long as you qualify for both programs.
Although this program is administered by Social Security, the money to pay for these benefits does not come from Social Security taxes; instead, these benefits are financed by the U.S. Treasury’s general revenue fund. In 2012, the maximum amount a single individual can receive in SSI benefits is $698 per month, and the maximum amount a couple can receive is $1,048 per month.

Eligibility For SSI:
Whether you are eligible for SSI depends on whether you are considered elderly, blind or disabled according to the SSI eligibility rules. If you are age 65 or older, you are considered elderly for SSI eligibility purposes. The rules for determining whether you are “blind” or “disabled” are more complex. Please consult a lawyer experienced with SSI if you want to make a claim for these benefits. Whether you may receive SSI also depends on the assets you own, the monthly income you receive and where you live. Examples of countable assets include some real estate, personal belongings, bank accounts, cash and stocks. Examples of assets which will not be counted include your home, one car (generally), and a burial plot for your immediate family. A single person can have countable assets of up to $2,000 and still receive SSI. A couple can have countable assets of up to $3,000 and still receive SSI.

In order to determine your monthly income, the Social Security office will ask about your unearned income, including interest on bank accounts, dividends payable from stocks, Social Security payments, pensions, gifts, and the income you earn working each month. Any unearned income over $20 a month will reduce your SSI benefits. Additionally, any earned income over $65 a month will reduce your SSI benefits. If you live in a friend’s or relative’s home, or a nursing home, your payments may be reduced. Also, an unmarried couple living together may be listed by the Social Security Administration as “holding out as husband and wife.” When this happens and both persons are receiving SSI, each check will be reduced to reflect the amount that a married couple would receive. If you feel that such rulings are wrongly applied to your situation, you can challenge them.

Appeals Process For Social Security And SSI:
If your application for Social Security or SSI benefits are denied or if any of your benefits are reduced or terminated, you may appeal the decision. Except to federal court, appeals can be made at your local Social Security office.

Here are the steps:
1. First, make a written request for a reconsideration within 60 days of the denial. Note: If you are already receiving benefits and you file your request for reconsideration within 10 days of the denial, your benefits will continue until the reconsideration decision is made.
2. If this fails, you must request a hearing before an Administrative Law Judge within 60 days of the denial of reconsideration.
3. If you are denied again, you can request a review by the Social Security Appeals Council in Arlington, Virginia within 60 days of the hearing decision.
4. If the Council refuses to review your case or decides against you, you have another 60 days to appeal to the local U.S. District Court. (Federal Court)

If you win an appeal at any level, you will receive certain back benefits. Under certain circumstances, you may be entitled to have benefits continued during the time you are appealing a decision. If you lose your appeal, you may have to pay this money back, unless you qualify for what is known as a “waiver.” Appeal forms are available from any Social Security Administration office or online at www.ssa.gov. You are allowed to have a friend or relative assist you in an appeal. You also should contact an experienced attorney to help you with an appeal concerning the Social Security or Supplemental Security Income programs. Information about how to contact an attorney is listed at the end of this handbook. A private lawyer’s fee is set by Social Security according to a written fee agreement between you and the attorney. Social Security will pay the lawyer directly out of your award, up to a maximum of 25 percent (25%) of past due benefits or $6,000, whichever is less. Legal Aid lawyers do not charge a fee.

How Other People Can Receive Your Benefit Checks:
Other people can receive Social Security benefit checks for beneficiaries who are not able to manage their own affairs. These people are known as representative payees. Their primary responsibility is to use the Social Security check for the beneficiary’s basic or personal needs.

The person designated to receive checks is usually a spouse or other relative, friend or legal guardian. An institution such as a nursing home can also be designated to receive Social Security benefit checks and may, in some cases, place checks for several recipients in a “collective account.” Institutions may charge a fee for serving as a representative payee. The maximum fee that can be charged is 10 percent (10%) of the monthly amount or $25, whichever is less.

The process of having someone appointed to receive checks begins with relatives or friends notifying the Social Security office that you are incapable of handling your own affairs. A doctor’s statement to that effect should be filed. The Social Security Administration then determines whether you are mentally competent to continue receiving your own checks. Even if you have given someone power of attorney, a separate application must be filed with the Social Security office before someone else can receive your Social Security checks. Any appointment can be challenged. For more details, call or visit your Social Security office.
Direct Deposit Of Benefit Checks:
Most banks and savings and loans will directly deposit your benefit checks to your account if you request direct deposit by the Social Security Administration. This is especially helpful for anyone who has trouble getting to and from the bank or who worries about mail being stolen. For more details, call or visit your bank or savings and loan.

Federal Supplemental Assistance Program
(Former Food Stamps Program)

North Carolina's Food Stamp program is run by the Department of Social Services of each county. The Food Stamp program helps low-income households buy the food they need for nutritionally adequate diets. If you move from one county to another in North Carolina, your eligibility for food stamps should not be affected.

Applying For Food Stamps:
You may request a Food Stamp application from the Social Services office in person, online over the phone or by mail. After you have completed your application, a worker may hold a private interview with you or another member of your household. Most interviews are held at the Social Services office. If you are age 60 or older or disabled, a worker will interview you at home or by telephone. In addition, if you are applying for or receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI), you may also apply for food stamps in your local Social Security office. You should receive your food stamps no later than 30 days from your original application date.

Eligibility:
Whether a household is eligible for food stamps depends on the amount of income earned plus all other resources of the household. Under the eligibility rules, almost all types of income are counted, including wages, public assistance, retirement, disability benefits and pensions. Only households with income at or below certain limits will qualify for food stamps. For a single-person household, the income limit is $1,815 in 2012. To determine the income limit for your family size, check with your County Department of Social Services or visit www.ncdhhs.gov. Any change in your household’s income must be reported to the food stamp office. In addition to meeting the income requirement, a household must only have $3,250 worth of countable resources ($2,000 for households without a person age 60 or over or disabled). Countable resources include cash and money in checking and savings accounts, stocks, bonds, and any land where you do not live. Certain assets remain non-countable resources, including your house and surrounding land, certain automobiles, and resources of an individual receiving SSI or Work First benefits. Any change in your household’s resources must be reported to the food stamp office.

After you add your income and resources, you may subtract certain deductions. These deductions include a standard deduction of $147, a 20 percent (20%) deduction from the income you earn, and a deduction for dependent care costs, medical costs and shelter costs. After taking into account all of your deductions, the Social Services office will determine whether you qualify for food stamps.

Using Your Food Stamps:
North Carolina’s food stamp program now provides a monthly allotment of Food Stamp benefits issued via Electron Benefit Transfer cards (ATM Cards). Most stores that sell food will also accept food stamp benefits just as they accept cash. No sales tax may be charged on any item purchased with food stamps.

Food stamps may be used to buy food, fruits, meat, vegetables, bread, coffee, canned foods, drinks and desserts. Food stamps cannot be used to buy alcohol, cigarettes, medicines, pet food, household supplies or personal hygiene supplies.

Right To Appeal:
You can appeal any action taken on your case by requesting a hearing in writing, in person or over the phone. It is recommended that you consult a lawyer experienced in this area early in the process.

Bank Accounts

Joint Bank Accounts:
If you have a joint bank account with your spouse, child, or another person, that account may have a right-of-survivorship feature. This means that when you die, all of the money in the account will automatically become the property of the person who owns the account with you.

If your joint account does not have right of survivorship, then at your death, your share of the money in the account will pass under your will to the person(s) you name as beneficiary(ies) in your will. If you do not have a will, North Carolina has laws that determine how your property should be divided at your death among your spouse, children, parents or other relatives.

Your bank or savings institution can tell you if your joint bank account has a right of survivorship feature by looking at the signature card you signed when you opened the account.

Trust Accounts:
Some banks, savings institutions and credit unions offer savings accounts that allow you to name the person who will receive the money at your death. In this way, these trust accounts are similar to a joint bank account with right of survivorship. However, there is a very important difference: you alone can make withdrawals from the account while you are living. The beneficiary you name has no right to the account until your death.
Personal Agency Accounts:
Many people would like to have a trusted relative or friend manage their bank account for them, but they do not necessarily want that person to be a joint owner of the account. Some banks, savings institutions and credit unions offer a type of account called a personal agency account. These accounts allow you to name a person who may (1) make deposits into the account for you and (2) write checks for you. However, that person will have no ownership right to the money in the account. This type of account will be useful if you need a friend or relative to help you manage your bank account, but you want to leave the money in the account to someone else. At your death, the money in your account will pass under your will to the person(s) you name as beneficiaries in your will. If you do not have a will, the state has laws that determine how your property should be divided among your spouse, children, parents or other relatives.

Other Trusts:
There are many other types of trusts. An attorney can give you more information about them and their uses.

Income Taxes
Certain kinds of incomes are taxed; others are not. For example, monetary gifts and interest earned on certain municipal bonds are not taxed. Salaries, wages, payments from a pension or profit sharing plan, and investment income are examples of income that are taxed.

In the past, Social Security payments were not taxed, but now, if your income exceeds a certain amount (which varies depending upon whether you are married and whether you file a joint return), part of your Social Security payments may be taxable for federal income tax purposes. In the instructions for your IRS Form 1040, there is a worksheet which will help you determine whether any part of your Social Security payments are taxable. Social Security payments are not taxed by North Carolina.

If you have taxable income, you usually will be required to file a return. If you have just a little income, you may not be required to file a return, but most people will want to file a return even if they do not have to.

Personal Exemptions: Federal:
An exemption means that your income, for tax purposes, is reduced by the amount of the exemption before the tax you owe is determined. Anyone who files an income tax return is allowed a personal exemption, except for persons who are eligible to be claimed as a dependent by someone else. Additional exemptions are allowed in some instances if you provide primary support for a dependent (such as a parent, child, or grandchild) who has less than a certain amount of income ($3,800 for 2012). See www.irs.gov for additional information.

Each exemption reduces your income for tax purposes by $3,800. So if you were entitled to four exemptions, your income for tax purposes would be reduced by $15,200 ($3,800 x 4). This exemption amount is adjusted annually for inflation. The additional personal exemption previously available for an elderly or blind individual has been replaced with an additional standard deduction amount.

Income Tax Credit:
You may also be eligible for a 15 percent (15%) tax credit. In general, this credit is available if your income does not exceed the specified level as adjusted annually for inflation, and:

1. You were 65 years of age before the close of the tax year; or
2. You are permanently and totally disabled.

This credit can only reduce the tax you owe; it cannot result in a refund. The tax is computed on Schedule R. If you think you may be eligible for the federal tax credit, contact the IRS office near you or your tax advisor.

Earned Income Tax Credit:
If you are working and have a child or grandchild living with you, you may be eligible for a tax credit called the Earned Income Tax Credit. This tax credit is generally available to anyone who maintains a home for himself and a child aged 19 and under who is a student or disabled.

Earned income for this tax credit means wages, salaries, tips, and earnings from self-employment. It does not include pension and annuity payments. This credit can reduce your taxes below zero and may even result in a refund to you.

Medical Expenses:
If you file a tax return and itemize your personal deductions, you will want to consider your medical and dental expenses. Medical expenses include doctor and hospital bills, health insurance costs, prescription medicines and drugs, as well as hearing devices, glasses, nursing help, equipment such as elevators for the physically disabled, transportation costs to and from medical care, and nursing home expenses, if the home is necessary for medical care.

Medical expenses are deductible if they total more than 7.5 percent (7.5%) of your adjusted gross income. If you have Medicare Part B coverage, the amount you pay each month is a deductible health insurance cost. The basic cost of Medicare insurance (Medicare A) is not deductible, unless voluntarily paid by the taxpayer for coverage.

Taxable Income: North Carolina:
In North Carolina, taxable income is defined as taxable income for federal income tax purposes, with certain deductions and additions. North Carolina does not tax Social Security benefits.
Tax Credit: Care Of Dependent:
A tax credit is available in North Carolina for any person who maintains a household which includes a dependent child, or a physically or mentally handicapped spouse or dependent of the taxpayer.

Individual Retirement Accounts

IRAs are accounts that you can set up with a bank, mutual fund, or broker to save for your retirement. If you are not an active participant in a pension or profit-sharing plan sponsored by your employer, the amount you contribute to an IRA is tax deductible. If you are an active participant in a pension or profit sharing plan, the amount you contribute may still be deductible, depending upon your income. You are not taxed on your deductible contribution or on any income earned by your IRA until you withdraw your money. In 1998, the new “Roth” IRAs became available.

Contributions to Roth IRAs are not deductible but qualified distributions are tax-free. Your banker, accountant, or attorney can answer your questions about IRAs. You must generally begin taking distributions from a regular IRA once you attain age 70 1/2; however, Roth IRAs do not have similar minimum distribution requirements and you may continue delaying distributions from – and even continue making contributions to – Roth IRAs.

Private Retirement Plans

If you have worked for a private company or have been a member of a union or any other employee organization, you may be eligible for retirement benefits from a pension or profit sharing plan sponsored by your employer. You should check with your past and current employers to see if you are covered.

The amount of time you work for an employer or belong to a union may affect your eligibility for benefits. In addition, if you stopped working for the employer, and then later returned to work, eligibility for benefits may be affected. Pension credit is usually based on how long you work for an employer who contributes to a retirement plan.

Your employer must provide you with a booklet describing the plan’s features, known as the “summary plan description.” This booklet will explain how the plan operates and your rights under the plan. If you are denied benefits under your employer’s retirement plan and you think you are entitled to them, you may appeal by requesting a hearing from your employer and presenting your complete work record. If you think the terms of the plan are unreasonable, say so. The terms may not comply with the law that sets minimum standards for retirement plans. In North Carolina, this law is enforced by:

U.S. Department of Labor
Atlanta Regional Office
Pension and Welfare Benefits Administration
61 Forsyth Street, S.W., Suite 7B54
Atlanta, GA 30303
(404) 302-3900 Fax: (404) 302-3975
www.dol.gov/ebsa
EBSA – Employee Benefit Security Admin.
Medicare

Medicare is a multi-part health insurance program established under the Social Security Act and administered by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Center for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), and the Social Security Administration. It is designed to help meet the hospital and medical costs of senior citizens (generally age 65 or over) and some disabled persons under 65.

Medicare hospital insurance (Part A) covers some of the costs of a hospital stay, care in a skilled nursing facility or, if ordered by a doctor, care in your home by a home nursing care agency after you leave the hospital. Part A also covers some hospice care in cases of terminal illness. Doctors’ services are not covered by Part A. There is generally no charge for Part A coverage.

Medicare medical insurance (Part B) is a supplementary insurance program for senior citizens (generally age 65 or over) and some disabled persons. It covers some doctors’ and outpatient hospital services, medical supplies, rural health clinics, ambulances (when medically necessary), physical therapy and certain other services that are not covered by Part A. Most Part B beneficiaries must pay a monthly premium for Part B coverage.

Medicare Part C consists of Medicare Advantage plans. Medicare Advantage plans are essentially a combination of Part A (hospital/inpatient coverage) and Part B (doctor visits/outpatient coverage). The difference is that Medicare Advantage plans are administered by private insurance companies, rather than by the government. Medicare Advantage plans are still subject to government oversight and must follow the rules established by CMS. The cost of Medicare Advantage plans can differ greatly from plan to plan.

Medicare Part D provides prescription drug coverage for seniors. As with Medicare Advantage plans, the cost of Part D coverage plans vary greatly; however, all plans must cover medically necessary drugs. Most of Part D beneficiaries must pay premiums for Part D coverage.

Medigap (Medicare supplement) policies are also available for purchase from private insurance companies. These plans offer coverage for the copays, deductibles, and coinsurance for Medicare covered services and goods.

Applications for Medicare benefits are handled by your local Social Security Administration office (to find the office nearest to you, call 1-800-772-1213 or visit their website at www.socialsecurity.gov). For general information on Medicare eligibility, benefits, and coverage, call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) or visit their website at www.medicare.gov. TTY users should call 1-877-486-2048.

Eligibility:

Generally you are eligible for Part A (hospital insurance) if:

1. You are 65 or over or qualify for Social Security retirement benefits, or Railroad Retirement benefits (you are entitled to benefits the first day of the first month you meet all eligibility requirements).

2. You are disabled and have been receiving Social Security disability benefits or Railroad Disability benefits for the past 24 months (you are entitled to benefits at the beginning of the 25th month).

3. You are receiving regular dialysis or need a kidney transplant because of permanent kidney failure.

4. You are age 65 or over and do not meet any of the above requirements, but you pay a Medicare premium.

If you are eligible for Medicare benefits based upon your age of 65 or over and you are receiving Social Security or Railroad retirement benefits, you do not need to complete an application to be enrolled for Part A benefits. If you do not meet this eligibility criteria, you must complete an application during an enrollment period.

You are eligible for Part B (medical insurance) if you are eligible for Part A and you are age 65 or over and you pay a monthly premium. (Premiums increase annually when Social Security benefits rise. The standard monthly premium for the year 2012 is $99.90.) Normally, unless you inform the Social Security office that you do not want to be in the program, your premium will automatically be taken out of your monthly Social Security check. You can also pay the premium by check each quarter.

You do not have to be eligible for Part A to qualify for Part B. You can qualify for Part B if you meet certain criteria of citizenship and residence and you are age 65 or over. You should sign up for Medicare as soon as you are eligible. If you delay in signing up, you may be required to pay a higher premium.
Medicare Advantage Plans and Prescription Drug Plans:
The original Medicare Plan (which is available everywhere) allows you to go to any doctor, specialist or hospital that accepts Medicare. You pay your share, and Medicare pays its share. Some things are not covered, like prescription drugs.

Medicare Advantage Plans, on the other hand, are not available everywhere and vary somewhat from plan to plan. In most Medicare Advantage Plans, you can only go to doctors, specialists or hospitals on the plan's list. These plans must cover all Medicare Part A and Part B health care. Some plans cover extras, like prescription drugs. Your costs may be lower than in the original Medicare Plan. For more information on the particular plans available in North Carolina, call the Seniors’ Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP) at 1-800-443-9354 or (919) 807-6900 (TDD: 919-715-0319). Or go online to www.ncshiip.com.

Medicare Part D (prescription drug) plans, like Medicare Advantage plans, are administered by private insurance companies. Part D plans can be added to the original Medicare plan, or to a Medicare Advantage plan. Additionally, you can join an HMO or PPO that includes Part D coverage. The monthly premium that you will pay, if any, depends on the plan that you choose. It is important to note that some plans have a coverage gap, often referred to as a “doughnut hole.” While you are in the coverage gap, you will have to pay for the entire cost of your prescriptions until you meet a set limit. After you meet that limit, you will only have to pay a co-pay or deductible for your prescriptions. You can contact the SHIIP for more information, or can research and enroll in a Medicare Part D plan at 1-800-MEDICARE.

Medigap (Medicare Supplemental Insurance) Policies:
Because Medicare does not cover all of a covered person’s medical costs, you may wish to consider purchasing a Medigap Policy. A Medigap policy is a health insurance policy sold by private insurance companies to fill some of the gaps in Original Medicare Plan coverage. Medigap policies, however, may still not cover all your medical expenses not covered by Medicare. Medigap policies must follow federal and state laws designed to protect consumers. The front of any Medigap policy must clearly identify it as “Medicare Supplemental Insurance.” If you have a policy that does not include this statement, you do not have an official Medigap policy. In most states, including North Carolina, a Medigap policy must be one of ten standardized policies called “Plan A” through “Plan N” so you can compare them easily. (Plans E, H, I and J are no longer available, but if you already have one of these policies, you are permitted to keep it.) Each policy has a different set of benefits. Two of the standardized policies may have a high deductible option. In addition, any standardized policy may be sold as a “Medicare SELECT” policy. Medicare SELECT policies usually cost less because you must use specific hospitals and, in some cases, doctors to get insurance benefits from the policy. In an emergency, you may use any doctor or hospital. Whether you need a Medigap policy or which Medigap policy is best for you are decisions only you can make. However, if you do decide to purchase a Medigap policy, you should remember that the best time to buy a Medigap policy is during your Medigap open enrollment period. This period starts on the first day of the month in which you are both age 65 or older and are enrolled in Medicare Part B. The Medigap open enrollment period lasts for six months. If you don’t buy a Medigap policy during your open enrollment period, you may not be able to buy the one you want, or you may be charged more for the policy. In addition, you should remember that if you have a Medigap policy and decide to drop it, you may not be able to get it back later. Visit www.medicare.gov/medigap.

What Medicare Pays And What You Pay:
No private insurance program pays for all costs of a visit with your doctor or a stay in the hospital. Even though it’s a public program, Medicare is no different.

Coverage Under Part A:
The Medicare program measures your use of services under Part A (hospital insurance) through benefit periods, also called spells of illness. Your first benefit period begins the first time you enter a hospital after your Medicare insurance goes into effect and ends 60 days after the date of discharge from either the hospital or a nursing home. A new benefit period begins the next time you enter the hospital if it has been at least 60 days since your last discharge from a hospital, skilled nursing facility or rehabilitative service. There is no limit to the number of spells of illness (benefit periods) you can have.

Part A covered services include such expenses as semi-private accommodations, meals, laboratory tests, nursing services, use of hospital facilities, drugs, medical and surgical services, supplies, diagnostic and therapeutic services, biological appliances and equipment.

Hospital Care Covered By Part A:
(Note: The dollar figures in this section will increase periodically.)

Under Part A, you receive up to 90 days of hospital care for each spell of illness.

FOR DAYS 1 TO 60
YOU pay: $1,156 of the initial costs in 2012. This is the annual “deductible” you must pay before receiving Medicare coverage. MEDICARE pays: Remainder of covered expenses.

FOR DAYS 61-90
YOU pay: $289 per day in 2012. MEDICARE pays: Remainder of covered expenses.
After your 90 days are up, you have the option of using some of your 60 lifetime reserve days to help pay costs if a longer hospital stay is required. Reserve days are not renewable.

FOR EACH LIFETIME RESERVE DAY:
(i.e. DAYS 91-150)
YOU pay: $578 per day in 2012
MEDICARE pays: Remainder of covered costs for each day, up to a 60-day maximum.

FOR DAYS BEYOND 150
YOU pay: all costs
MEDICARE pays: $0

Nursing Care Covered By Part A:
(Note: The dollar figures in this section will increase periodically.)

Part A also gives up to 100 days of care in a skilled nursing facility per spell of illness (after three consecutive days in the hospital). Your coverage in a skilled nursing facility is based upon your physical condition and the type of medical services you require.

FOR DAYS 1-20:
YOU pay: Nothing if expenses are covered.
MEDICARE pays: All covered expenses.

FOR DAYS 21-100:
YOU pay: $144.50 per day in 2012
MEDICARE pays: Remainder of covered expenses.

Home Health Services:

If you require skilled nursing care or rehabilitation in your home, home health care visits can be covered by Medicare. Typical coverage would include part-time nursing care by a registered nurse, physical, occupational or speech therapy, part-time home health aide services, medical supplies, medical social services and durable medical equipment. Except for limits on payment for durable medical equipment, Medicare pays for all covered home health services, except you pay 20 percent (20%) of allowable charges for durable medical equipment (such as wheelchairs, hospital beds, oxygen and walkers).

Hospice Care:

Part A Medicare pays for two periods of 90 days and an unlimited number of subsequent periods of up to 60 days each for hospice care from a participating hospice program. You pay a copayment of $5 for prescription drugs and 5 percent (5%) of the Medicare-approved amount of inpatient respite care (short-term care given to a hospice patient by another caregiver, so that the usual caregiver can rest.)

Blood:
You pay for the first three pints of blood, unless you or someone else donates blood to replace what you use.

Coverage Under Part B:
Part B of the Medicare program (medical insurance) has a basic payment for all charges for covered medical expenses. You pay the first $140 of all allowable charges in each calendar year and Medicare will pay 80 percent (80%) of all other allowable charges. Covered medical expenses include physician services, supplies and services provided you by the physician, outpatient diagnostic services, x-rays, clinical laboratory services, home health care, rental or purchase of durable medical equipment and certain outpatient hospital services, etc.

After the $140 deductible, you pay 20 percent (20%) of all other allowable covered medical expenses except for outpatient mental health care for which you are required to pay 50 percent (50%) of all charges.

Coverage Under Medicare Advantage, Medicare Part D and Medigap Plans:
The coverage available to you under these plans depends on the plan you select. You should either contact your Medicare insurance company directly, or go to www.medicare.gov for more information.

What Is An Allowable Charge?
The Medicare program has a predetermined maximum amount of money it will pay for a particular medical service. This maximum is called the “allowable charge.” It may or may not be the amount you are billed by your doctor, the hospital or other medical provider.

The list of “allowable charges” is updated every year to try to keep pace with changes in medical care prices. The “allowable charge” on which benefits are based is often less than you are billed. This is especially true for Part B claims.

How Medicare Payments Are Made:
You do not have to send in any bills for care you receive from a participating hospital, skilled nursing facility or home health agency under Medicare Part A. They will normally make the claim for you and Medicare will pay its share of the cost directly to them. You will get a notice explaining exactly what was paid by Medicare coverage.

Payment under Medicare Part B is made in two ways. The medical insurance payment can go directly to the doctor or medical service supplier if you and the other party agree to this and you make the necessary arrangements with your doctor. This pay-
You are automatically eligible in this case if you do not fall within a “categorically needy” group due to income or assets. You may be eligible for benefits if you have sufficient income and assets to cover basic living expenses but insufficient income or assets to pay for medical or long-term care. In this case, you may have a deductible or spend-down before you are eligible for Medicaid benefits.

Application:
You may apply for Medicaid at your county Department of Social Services. They will ask you for information about your income, your belongings, where you live, and with whom you live. You should take the following items with you: your birth certificate or other proof of age; letters or forms which prove how much you receive from Social Security, SSI, Veterans Administration, retirement or other sources of income; your Social Security card; wage stubs; insurance policies; bank books; and proof of any other investments or debt.

Eligibility Categories:
For both Medicaid for the Aged, Blind and Disabled and Medicaid for Long-term Care, there are two ways to demonstrate eligibility for Medicaid benefits:

1. Categorically Needy. You are automatically eligible in this category if you are entitled to receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or State-County Special Assistance for Adults (described below). In addition, elderly Social Security recipients who previously received SSI benefits are eligible for Medicaid benefits in some situations.

2. Medically Needy. You can be eligible as a medically needy person if you do not fall within a “categorically needy” group due to income or assets. You may be eligible for benefits if you have sufficient income and assets to cover basic living expenses but insufficient income or assets to pay for medical or long-term care. In this case, you may have a deductible or spend-down before you are eligible for Medicaid benefits.

Medicaid for the Aged, Blind and Disabled: Income and Asset Limits for Medically Needy: Categorically needy recipients, that is, elderly persons who are receiving SSI or State-County Special Assistance for Adults, are automatically financially eligible to receive Medicaid without... having to meet a Medicaid deductible or spend-down. However, other medically needy elderly and disabled persons must spend down all their income above the limits required by Medicaid for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled. In North Carolina, the income limits for medically needy elderly and disabled persons in a private living arrangement (that is, living at home or with a relative) are currently $931 per month for an individual and $1,261 per month for a couple. This limit represents the federal poverty level.

If your income exceeds the federal poverty level, you may still be eligible for Medicaid for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled if you can meet the deductible (also known as the spend-down). The deductible is determined by subtracting the "Medically Needy Income Limit," currently $242 per month for individuals and $317 per month for couples, from your income. The difference represents the deductible, and to qualify for Medicaid you must show that you have incurred medical expenses at least equal to the deductible, including both paid and unpaid medical bills not covered by Medicare or private insurance. If you are required to spend-down before you qualify for Medicaid, remember to save all medical bills and receipts.

There are also resource limits for Medicaid recipients. To qualify, you must demonstrate that your countable assets do not exceed the SSI limits of $2,000 for individuals and $3,000 for couples. If your countable assets exceed those amounts, you will need to spend down below those limits before you are eligible. It is important to note that there are many kinds of assets that do not count against the resource limits. They are known as "exempt assets," and they generally include a personal residence, one automobile for transportation, and many other kinds of assets, including certain real property, some business assets and some investment assets. Your county Department of Social Services or an attorney specializing in elder law can help you with the rules for both exempt assets and spending down.

Medicaid for Long-term Care:

In addition to the Medicaid coverage described above, there is a separate Medicaid benefit specifically to help families and individuals pay for intermediate or skilled nursing home care, known as Medicaid for Long-Term Care. To qualify for this benefit, the patient must demonstrate medical need for intermediate or skilled care, as certified by his or her physician. Additionally, the patient's countable assets must be less than the SSI asset limits ($2,000 for an individual, $3,000 for a married couple) and the patient's countable income must be less than his or her anticipated nursing home costs. Because of the high costs of nursing home care, the income test is usually not an obstacle to Medicaid qualification. However, the resource test means that applicants must still know about exempt assets and spending down, as described in the previous section.

For married couples, there are also special rules to prevent the impoverishment of the spouse still living at home or in the community (called the community spouse). These rules may allocate a portion of the institutionalized spouse's income or resources to the community spouse, which means that they will not count against the institutionalized spouse's eligibility under the income or resource tests. Your county Department of Social Services or attorneys specializing in elder law can help you with these and other rules that may apply to your particular situation.

Transfer of Assets Rules:

Some people try to make themselves poor enough to qualify for Medicaid by transferring assets to their children or other relatives. Although some transfers are permitted, the rules are designed to discourage you from making transfers for less than fair market value. Uncompensated transfers can result in the loss of Medicaid eligibility for many months of nursing home care. There is a look-back period of 60 months prior to application during which transfers will be examined. Because of the complex and ever-changing nature of these rules and the severe penalties associated with some transfers, you should consult an attorney experienced in elder law issues or your local office of the Department of Social Services for specific eligibility requirements before attempting to transfer any assets for Medicaid purposes.

Medicaid Liens and Estate Recovery:

As required by federal Medicaid law, North Carolina has the right to seek recovery of certain Medicaid benefits from the estate of a Medicaid recipient after the death of the recipient and his or her spouse. This right is known as estate recovery, and is also sometimes informally referred to as the “Medicaid lien.” North Carolina consistently pursues estate recovery. As part of the application and redetermination procedures, your county Department of Social Services is required explain estate recovery to you.

However, there are limits to estate recovery in North Carolina. Most importantly, estate recovery will be waived by the state when the recipient is survived by a legal spouse, a child under age 21, or a child of any age who is blind or disabled. It will also be waived when assets in the estate total to less than $5,000, or if the total amount paid by Medicaid during the recipient's care is less than $3,000, or when recovery will cause undue or substantial hardship to a surviving heir.

Expenses Covered By Medicaid:

Many types of medical services are covered by the North Carolina Medicaid Program. Among the covered expenses are:

- Hospital Services
- Physician Services
- Prescription Drugs (up to six prescriptions per month)
- Dental Care
- Home Health Services
- Durable Medical Equipment
If you have any question about whether Medicaid will pay for a service, you should always ask your county Department of Social Services in advance.

State-County Special Assistance for Assisted Living:
While Medicaid for Long-term Care provides a benefit only to persons who require intermediate or skilled nursing care, there is also a benefit for North Carolinians who are unable to afford the costs of assisted living or rest home services. This benefit is called State-County Special Assistance, or simply “Special Assistance.” Special Assistance eligibility rules and transfer of asset rules are similar to those for Medicaid, but there are important differences, including how community spouses’ income and assets are treated, “look back” periods, and how some real estate resources are counted toward asset limits. As noted above, recipients of Special Assistance are generally automatically eligible for Medicaid for Long-term Care upon medical need for nursing care. For more details about Special Assistance eligibility and benefits, contact your county Department of Social Services or an attorney specializing in elder law.

Your Rights:
If you are eligible to receive SSI or Special Assistance benefits, you automatically will receive a monthly Medicaid card and do not need to apply for Medicaid. Otherwise, you must file a written application with the county Department of Social Services (DSS) where you reside. Application for Medicaid also may be filed on behalf of an elderly or disabled person if authorized, or if the applicant is incapacitated or incompetent. DSS must tell you within 45 days of application whether or not you qualify (or 90 days for applications based on disability). If you do not give Medicaid the information they need during these 45 days, it can take longer. If you are denied, you can appeal that decision to your local Department of Social Services. You have 60 days from the date of denial to appeal (or 90 days with good cause).

An appeal hearing will be held at the local Department of Social Services office after your appeal is received. You have the right to be represented by an attorney or personal representative and to examine the contents of the Medicaid case file. If you are dissatisfied with the appeal decision, you should appeal within 15 days to the Division of Social Services, and after that you can appeal to the courts. If you receive Medicaid but cannot get to the doctor on your own, you have the right to get help from the county Department of Social Services in arranging or paying for your transportation.

Your Responsibilities:
If you qualify for Medicaid benefits, you must report changes that might affect your eligibility within ten days. It is against the law to keep information or give false information to the Department of Social Services in order to get or keep getting Medicaid. Persons who give away any property in order to qualify for Medicaid can be denied Medicaid benefits even if they meet all the usual requirements. This includes land, cash, or other belongings.

More Information:
More detailed information for your particular circumstance can be obtained from your county Department of Social Services or the Division of Medical Assistance’s CARE-LINE at 1-800-662-7030 or (919) 855-4400 or online at www.dhhs.state.nc.us/dma.

Nursing Homes
A nursing home may provide care almost as intensive as a hospital, or provide rooms, food, and people to help you do things you cannot do for yourself. Nursing homes generally provide two levels of care, skilled nursing care and intermediate care, rendered by licensed nurses under the supervision of a physician. It is important to note that nursing homes do not provide one-on-one care. In other words, you will not be assigned a single nurse or aide to assist you at all times. If you desire or require this level of care, you should look into home health or private duty nursing services.

When you are selecting a nursing home, it is important for you, your family, and friends to be thorough in locating an appropriate place. It is also essential to remain objective and to maintain a healthy consumer skepticism while examining your options. Because you are making both living and health care arrangements, choosing a nursing home that will suit your needs deserves more care and caution than buying a house or renting an apartment.

Before you begin to look at nursing homes, there are several things to consider. Your medical and physical needs are most important in choosing a nursing home. Your family, friends, and doctor can help you decide what kind of care you need. You must also consider the costs associated with each of the nursing homes you consider and your financial resources (including Medicaid resources) to be sure you find a nursing home that you can afford. Without sacrificing quality of care, you should also try to find a nursing home that is located near people you love. Their visits will be important to you.

When inspecting the credentials of a nursing home, do not hesitate to ask questions. It is important, though, not only to ask questions, but to ask the right questions. It is also important to remember that just because a nursing home meets the minimum requirements for licensure and certification that it may not be the best available facility. Simply put, not all nursing homes are created equal, and it is important that you find one that best suits your needs. Here are some important points to keep in mind and questions to ask when you are visiting homes:

1. Licensure. The nursing home is required to be licensed by the State of North Carolina. Each year the state conducts an inspection survey of the nursing home to assure quality care is provided. Determine whether the license is in danger of being revoked, suspended, or not renewed as a result of this survey. The most recent license survey inspection must be posted in a prominent location in the nursing home. You may ask to review the report to determine for yourself that the nursing home has remedied any problems.

2. Certification. If the nursing home accepts Medicare or Medicaid patients, a state or federal inspection survey of the facility is also conducted annually to assure that certain quality requirements are met. Ask to review this inspection survey as the nursing home must meet these requirements for continued participation in Medicare or Medicaid programs. If you have access to the Internet, you can find survey information for all Medicare-certified nursing homes on Medicare's Nursing Home Compare tool, located at http://www.medicare.gov/NHCompare. This website also contains other helpful guides for selecting a nursing home.

3. Nursing Service. What level of care is provided? Does it meet your needs?

4. Physician Services. Is there a staff physician or medical director who helps set policies and makes emergency calls? What provisions does the nursing home have for medical follow up by a family physician?

5. Activities Program. Ask to see the monthly calendar of scheduled activities. Are there organized activities which interest you? Is there a regular schedule? What religious services are available?

6. Rehabilitation and Physical Therapy. What facilities and staff are available for these services? Do they meet the needs of the patient as prescribed by the family doctor?

7. Visiting Hours. What are they?

8. In-Service Education. Does the home have continuous in-service education programs for its staff? Residents need various types of rehabilitation services and the techniques used to deliver these services periodically change. It is important that all staff are provided in-service training to keep up to date on the changes.

9. Dietary Service. Does the nursing home serve appealing, nutritious meals that are planned by a Registered Dietitian? Are special diets available? Ask to see a copy of the planned menus. Visit the nursing home at a time when you can observe a meal.

10. Safety. Is there an adequate fire safety system that includes at least smoke, heat, and carbon monoxide detectors, as well as sprinklers or approved fire-resistant construction? There must be a plan posted for quick evacuation in case of fire, and the staff and residents should be trained in fire safety. Are there handrails in the hallways and grab bars next to bathtubs, showers and toilets? Are there sufficient toilet and bathing accommodations with privacy to meet your needs?

11. Costs and Charges. What services are included in the basic daily charge of the nursing home? Ask the administrator to provide you a written summary of basic daily charges and extra charges. Do these extra charges include all of the supply costs that are necessary for the services the patient requires? Remember that the higher the level of care, the higher the costs are likely to be.

12. Deposits. If you are paying privately for nursing home care, will you be required to make a deposit? How much is required to be paid in advance? How will the deposit be returned if you do not stay at the nursing home or if you qualify for Medicare or Medicaid at time of admission?

13. Medications. You have the right to choose a pharmacy from a list available in the nursing home. However, if you choose a pharmacy other than the one the facility contracts with, then your pharmacist must be willing to provide your medications in the same administration packaging as the nursing home's pharmacist. For the safety and well-being of the patient, medications purchased by you or brought from home may not be allowed.

14. Third Party Payment. What third party payments will the nursing home accept? Does it take Medicare and Medicaid patients? If so, may you shift to Medicaid or Medicare payment if, after being admitted as a private patient, it is determined that you are eligible for Medicare or Medicaid?

15. Policies. What policies does the nursing home have about visiting hours, gifts of food, and the like? The nursing home must provide you with a written list of all policies.

When visiting a nursing home, be on the look out. In general, nursing homes will look well-maintained and pleasant to the visitor. But in order to get a feel for the institution from a resident’s viewpoint, several key factors should be kept in mind: nurse staffing, safety, cleanliness, pleasantness, morale, privacy and respect.

16. Nurse Staffing. This is perhaps the most important factor in the delivery of care in a nursing home. The nursing home should have sufficient licensed nurses and certified nursing assistant to carry out the medical care program as ordered by the attending physician.

17. Safety. This is a special concern for everyone, but it is even more important if you have limited motion, visual impairments and other infirmities. Keep a lookout for fire hazards, blocked fire doors or unobserved smoking restrictions. To prevent the possibility of a fall, make sure that there are well-lighted stairways and passageways free of obstacles such as light cords, throw rugs, torn carpets, and cracked tiles.

18. Cleanliness. This should be a high priority for any nursing home. If a home smells of urine or heavy “cover up” deodorant, watch out! Check things such as windowsills, counter tops and bedside tables for dirt or dust. These can be telltale signs that the nursing home is cutting corners by skimping on the housekeeping. Kitchens, nursing stations, lounges and residents’ bathrooms must be clean—nothing less should be tolerated.

19. Pleasantness. This factor should not be discounted when looking at a nursing home. Comfortable chairs and good storage space for clothing, colorful bedspreads and draperies, flowers, pictures, seasonal decorations, and general orderliness are all important in providing a happy and comfortable homelike atmosphere for a full time resident. Things such as drinking fountains, a beauty shop, lounges, properly functioning televisions and radios, and easily accessible public telephones go a long way toward making your stay more pleasant.

20. Staff and Resident Morale. Morale cannot be overlooked when considering a nursing home's overall pluses and minuses. Regularly scheduled activities with encouragement by the staff to participate can be a big morale booster. See if the staff members have a positive attitude toward the residents. Indifferent and grumpy staff members can cause a bad atmosphere that hampers, if not destroys, good resident morale. A good indicator of staff morale is the patience and gentleness shown by staff in caring for residents. Take a good look at the residents. See how they act and how they are dressed. Do they appear to be happy, interested, and involved with what is going on?

21. Privacy and Respect. These factors are very important to a nursing home resident. Residents are entitled to be treated with respect and dignity, and to have as much privacy as possible. When baths are given in bed, curtains should be drawn to protect the resident’s privacy. Residents should be addressed by their names and be treated as adults. Actions such as these show respect on the part of the staff and, by extension, the nursing home administration.

Watch and talk to the staff to get clues as to their attitudes towards their jobs and the residents that the staff serves. Notice how the residents are treated. If you visit a nursing home, or you are evaluating the facility for placement for yourself or a loved one, you may expect to see and hear residents who are helpless, bedridden, or crying out. Keep in mind that these individuals are residents of the nursing home because they have a medical condition requiring nursing care. What you see and hear may not reflect the quality of care provided by the nursing home. A visual measure of the quality of nursing is how well-kept and clean these residents are and the manner in which the staff responds to the resident’s needs.

There are many resources available to help in selecting a nursing home, and you should look beyond this booklet to make sure that you are properly educated before selecting a nursing home. A good place to start is the Medicare website for nursing homes, www.medicare.gov/LongTermCare/static/StepsOverview.asp. This site has a wealth of information, including a printable brochure called “Your Guide to Choosing A Nursing Home.”

There also is a feature called “Nursing Home Compare” at www.medicare.gov/NHCompare/Home.asp. This is a database of all Medicare-eligible facilities. It allows you to do side-by-side comparisons of facilities, as well as comparisons to national and statewide statistical averages. If you do not have Internet access, call your local public library and ask if Internet access is available there. You can also call Medicare at 1 800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) and request a copy of “Your Guide to Choosing a Nursing Home” published by the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services. This guide for choosing nursing homes is also available over the Internet through the Medicare website at www.medicare.gov/LongTermCare/Static/Publications.asp.

In considering a nursing home, you should again be sure to that the nursing home is meeting state and federal minimum requirements that apply to nursing homes. The nursing home is required to be licensed by the State of North Carolina. Each year, the state conducts an inspection survey of the home to see that it meets certain minimum state requirements. You should check to see whether a facility is operating under a provisional license because it is not meeting state minimum standards. You should also request to see the most recent inspection of the state to determine for yourself whether the facility is meeting the state's minimum standards and in what areas the facility is having trouble meeting the state's minimum standards.

You should also consider the physician that will be treating you in the nursing home. Does your physician have patients in the nursing home or will you be forced to use a different doctor? If you must use the facility’s doctor, meet him or her and make sure you are comfortable with him or her as your treating physician. Does this person have similar ideas about the care that should be rendered? Does the physician actually visit the facility or does the physician typically send a nurse or someone else instead?
Admission to a Nursing Home:
At some future time, either you or a loved one may require nursing home placement. You should expect to complete a considerable amount of paperwork in applying for and seeking admission to a nursing home. State and federal regulations governing nursing homes necessitate much of the paperwork you will be asked to complete. You should carefully review the Admission Agreement, because it is a binding legal document and may affect you and/or a family member. Ask to have sufficient time to read and understand this document. You have a right to have this agreement explained to you in language you understand. In addition, you are not required to have a “responsible party” personally liable for payment of your bill should you have insufficient resources.

Federal law prohibits a requirement for a financial guarantor. However, the facility may require any individual who has legal access to a resident's income or resources available to pay for a resident's care to sign the Admission Agreement. This individual will not incur personal financial liability but rather is obligated to provide payment to the facility from the resident's income or resources. In other words, if a resident names a person to be in charge of his or her finances, that person is required to use the resident's funds to pay for the resident's care.

Finally, many nursing homes are requesting that patients sign an agreement requiring them to arbitrate their disputes with the nursing home, instead of filing a civil lawsuit, including disputes arising out of negligent care resulting in personal injury or death. The nursing home cannot require the patient to sign the arbitration agreement as a condition of admission. Because an arbitration agreement is not a condition of admission, this agreement should be reviewed carefully, and separately, from the other documents which are signed at admission. An arbitration agreement usually provides that the patient is giving up his or her right to a jury trial if a lawsuit for negligent care is later brought, and instead agrees to present any disputes to an arbitrator or panel of arbitrators who will decide issues of responsibility and damages.

Drugs
When your doctor writes or calls in a prescription for you, the pharmacist is usually given a brand name. This means that the drug is identified by the name given it by a drug manufacturing company rather than by its chemical name. Many drugs are also available by their chemical name. These are called generic drugs. Just like plain label groceries, drugs are less expensive if you can buy them by their chemical name rather than by a brand name.

If your doctor gives permission, the pharmacist can substitute a generic drug if it is available when your prescription is filled. Of course, the generic substitute must have the same active chemical ingredients of the same strength, quantity, and dosage form as the brand name drug your doctor prescribed. Not all drugs can be substituted, but many can. Ask your doctor and your pharmacist about a generic substitute the next time you have to buy a prescription drug. It could reduce the cost to you.

Over the counter medicines also can be bought by their generic name. For example, most aspirin products have the same active ingredient. You may choose to select a brand name or to select a bottle simply labeled as aspirin. Usually the plain label is less expensive.

Patients’ Rights In Nursing Homes:
People who live in nursing homes have many rights under state and federal law. It is important to understand these rights. Under a state law called the “Declaration of Patients’ Rights,” a nursing home resident is entitled to the following rights:

1. To be treated with consideration, respect, and full recognition of personal dignity and individuality.
2. To receive care, treatment and services which are adequate, appropriate, and in compliance with relevant federal and state statutes and rules.
3. To receive at the time of admission and during the stay, a written statement of the services provided by the facility, including those required to be offered on an as needed basis, and of related charges.
4. To have on file a written or verbal order of the attending physician containing any information as the attending physician deems appropriate or necessary, together with the proposed schedule of medical treatment.
5. To receive respect and privacy in the patient’s medical care program. Personal and medical records shall be confidential.
6. To be free from mental and physical abuse and to be free from chemical and physical restraints unless authorized for a specified period of time by a physician according to clear and indicated medical need.
7. To receive from the administrator or staff of the facility a reasonable response to all requests.
8. To associate and communicate privately with persons and groups of the patient’s choice; to send and receive mail promptly and unopened; to have access at any reasonable hour to a telephone where the patient may speak privately.
9. To manage the patient's financial affairs unless authority has been delegated to another.

10. To enjoy privacy in visits by the patient's spouse, and, if both are inpatients of the facility, they shall be afforded the opportunity where feasible to share a room.

11. To enjoy privacy in the patient's room.

12. To present grievances and recommend changes in policies and services without fear of reprisal, restraint, interference, coercion or discrimination.

13. To not be required to perform services for the facility without personal consent and the written approval of the attending physician.

14. To retain, to secure storage for, and to use personal clothing and possessions, where reasonable.

15. To not be transferred or discharged from a facility except for medical reasons, the patient's own or other patients' welfare, nonpayment for the stay, or when the transfer or discharge is mandated under Title XVIII (Medicare) or Title XIX (Medicaid) of the Social Security Act. The patient shall be given at least five days advance notice to ensure orderly transfer or discharge, unless the attending physician orders immediate transfer, and these actions, and the reasons for them, shall be documented in the patient's medical record.

16. To be notified within ten days after the facility has been issued a provisional license or received notice of revocation of license.

If the home accepts Medicare and Medicaid patients, residents also have rights provided by federal regulations which may overlap with patients' rights provided under state law, including:

A. To be treated with consideration, respect and full recognition of dignity and individuality.

B. To be free from verbal, sexual, mental or physical abuse, corporal punishment, involuntary seclusion, and any physical or chemical restraint imposed for purposes of discipline or convenience or for other than treating medical symptoms.

C. To organize and participate in resident groups in the facility, and have members of the resident's family meet with families of other residents in private space in the facility.

D. To participate in social, religious and community activities that do not interfere with the rights of other residents in the facility.

E. To be encouraged and assisted throughout his or her stay in the facility to exercise these resident rights as well as those to which the resident is entitled as a U.S. citizen.

F. To manage personal financial affairs or have a legal representative handle those affairs on behalf of the resident, and the facility may not require the resident to deposit his or her personal funds with the facility.

G. To recommend changes in facility policies and services without fear of reprisal, restraint, interference, coercion or discrimination, and to have prompt efforts undertaken by the facility to resolve them.

H. To file a complaint with the state survey and certification agency concerning resident abuse or neglect or misappropriation of resident property in the facility.

I. To contact and to be visited by any representative of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the state, or the state's long term care ombudsman or advocacy system, or the resident's physician, or with the resident's consent, family or relatives, or any group or person who provides health, social, legal or other services to the resident.

J. To examine the results of the facility's most recent survey conducted by representatives of the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Plan of Correction prepared by the facility in response to the survey.

K. To choose a personal attending physician (and be informed how to make contact), be fully informed in advance about care and treatment, and unless adjudicated incompetent or otherwise found incapacitated under state law, participate in planning medical treatment.

L. To contract with chosen providers, unless prohibited by applicable law, as long as the providers agree to and follow the reasonable rules and regulations of the facility.

M. To be fully informed in understandable language of the resident's medical condition and health status.

N. To refuse medical treatment and to participate in experimental research.

O. To review the resident's own medical record upon request to the facility 24 hours in advance and to purchase a copy of the record after such review upon 48 business hour advance notice to the facility.

P. To keep and use personal clothing and possessions in the facility as space permits unless doing so would infringe upon the rights and safety of other residents.
Q. To occupy the same room as the resident's spouse if the spouse is also a resident of the facility and agrees to the cohabitation.

R. To have reasonable access to a telephone for private conversation while in the facility.

S. To receive appropriate advance notice (usually 30 days written notice) of any involuntary transfer or discharge from the facility, as required by law.

T. To refuse to be transferred or discharged from the facility unless:
   i) the transfer or discharge is necessary for the resident's welfare because the resident's needs cannot be met in the facility;
   ii) the resident's health has improved sufficiently so that the services of the facility are no longer necessary;
   iii) the health or safety of others in the facility would be endangered by the resident's continued stay;
   iv) the resident has failed, after reasonable and appropriate notice, to pay or arrange for payment to be made under Medicare or Medicaid, for charges incurred during his or her stay at the facility; or
   v) the facility ceases to operate and/or is no longer authorized to care for the resident under applicable law.

U. To receive notice before a room or roommate in the facility is changed.

V. To refuse a room transfer if the purpose of the transfer is to move the resident between a Medicare certified bed and non Medicare certified bed.

W. To have the facility comply with the terms of a written directive concerning medical care signed by the resident (e.g., Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, Living Will, etc.) that complies with applicable state law.

X. To receive information prepared by the state regarding requirements and procedures for establishing eligibility for Medicaid, including the right to request assessment under Section 1924(c)) which determines the extent of a couple's non exempt resources at the time of institutionalization and community spousal assets.

Y. To a posting of names, addresses and telephone numbers of all pertinent state client advocacy groups such as survey and certification, licensing, ombudsman, protection and advocacy network, and Medicaid fraud control unit.

Z. To have the resident's physician and legal representative or interested family member informed of any accident involving the resident resulting in injury or requiring physician intervention, any significant change in the resident's condition, or need to alter treatment significantly.

AA. Upon written authorization to the facility, to have personal funds deposited with the facility. Personal funds in excess of $50 shall be deposited in an interest bearing account with interest accruing to the resident.

BB. To refuse to perform services for the facility, but if the resident chooses to perform services, the facility must appropriately document the need or desire for work in the Plan of Care, and any agreed upon compensation must be at or above the prevailing rates.

CC. To privacy in written communication, including the right to send and promptly receive mail that is unopened, and to have access to stationary, postage and writing implements at the resident's expense.

DD. To self administer drugs if the interdisciplinary team has determined the practice is safe.

Nursing home residents who feel that any of these rights have been violated or who need help with problems in the nursing home have several places to turn for help. Every county in North Carolina that contains a nursing home must have a Nursing Home Community Advisory Committee which is appointed by the county commissioners to help residents. Their local telephone number must be posted in the home. All complaints are confidential and neither the name of the person complaining nor the name of the resident will be told without their agreement.

The North Carolina Division of Aging has a network of state and regional Long Term Care Ombudsmen who work with the committees and will also receive confidential complaints from residents or their families.

Contact:
North Carolina Division of Aging
2101 Mail Service Center
Raleigh, NC 27699-2101
(919) 733-3983 or 1-800-662-7030

In addition, the Division of Aging also has a very informative website located at www.dhhs.state.nc.us/aging/ with information on a wide variety of topics of interest to the elderly in North Carolina.

The North Carolina Division of Health Service Regulation has the responsibility for licensing nursing homes and enforcing patient rights. The Division will investigate complaints and may penalize the home or have the problem corrected.
Patients’ Rights In Hospitals:

You may be spending time in hospitals or clinics in the future as a patient or volunteer helper. As a volunteer helper, you need certain information in order to assist patients with their problems while they are in the hospital. As a patient, you have a right to expect a high level of care and treatment while you are in the hospital. Illness may prevent you from expressing your complaints or wishes effectively. In response to these concerns, the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services has introduced rules on Patient Rights with which all hospitals that participate in Medicare must comply. These rules require the following:

1. A hospital must inform each patient of his or her rights.
2. A hospital must have a process for resolving patient grievances in a timely manner.
3. The patient has the right to participate in the development of his or her plan of care.
4. The patient has the right to sufficient information to make informed decisions about his or her care.
5. The patient has the right to formulate advance directives and to have these directives honored by the hospital and its practitioners.
6. The patient has the right to have a family member or other representative promptly notified of his or her admission to the hospital.
7. The patient has the right to personal privacy, to receive care in a safe setting and to be free of all forms of abuse or harassment.
8. The patient has the right to have his or her medical records kept confidential.
9. The patient has the right to information contained in his or her medical records within a reasonable time of the request for such information.
10. The patient has the right to be free from seclusion and restraints of any form that are used as a means of coercion, discipline, convenience or retaliation by staff.

Consent To Treatment:

When you are being treated as a patient in a hospital or other health care facility, your treatment should be explained to you by your physician in words and terms you can understand. Before you can agree to receive or refuse treatment, you need to understand the diagnosis and prognosis of your medical condition, the risks, benefits, and alternatives of treatment and the risk and probable outcome of non intervention. The decisions you make about your health care and treatment must be based on complete information. These decisions are yours alone as long as you have the capability to make such decisions. You have a right to refuse treatment if you wish. Ask questions of your physicians and expect answers.

The doctors, nurses and other health care personnel who explain your treatment are required by law to obtain your written consent or agreement to the treatment they propose. If you sign such a document after fully understanding the proposed treatment, you may not be able to successfully sue them for treating you without your consent.

Although this law protects the doctors, nurses, and others who treat you, it also helps you by requiring that your treatment is explained to you. Generally the law protects you from receiving treatment that you do not understand and agree to receive. If you are not mentally or physically capable of understanding or giving consent to the procedures to be performed upon you, consent to your treatment may be given by your guardian, health care power of attorney, spouse or nearest relative.

Confidentiality

In North Carolina, most communications between a doctor and patient are confidential. Your doctor cannot give out information about you, except in certain limited circumstances. Confidential communications include any information you give your doctor when you are seeing him or her as a patient. The records that your family doctor keeps for a number of years are also confidential. In a hospital or nursing home, confidential communications include most of your chart or medical records. Most other medical personnel, such as nurses and technicians, are also bound by rules of confidentiality.

When you are a patient you have a right to expect that your records will be confidential, unless you agree to their release or unless the court orders their release. Of course, there are exceptions to every rule. The rule regarding confidentiality of medical records is one which has many exceptions. The following situations illustrate some of these exceptions:

1. When your insurance company asks for your medical records from your doctor or the hospital, may that information be released? YES, unless you have already paid in full and request that the records not be sent to your insurance company. Most insurance policies require you to sign a Consent to Release of Medical Information form when you apply for your insurance policy.

2. If your medical costs are paid in full or in part by Medicare or Medicaid, may either program access or secure information from your medical record? YES.

3. If your medical records are subpoenaed by a court of law, must the physician or hospital obey the subpoena? YES.

4. Should the physician, hospital or nursing home allow anyone to inspect your records before they are subpoenaed by the court if you have not consented? NO, except in certain circumstances. For example, the State Health Director can review medical records in the case of a disease outbreak and other similar circumstances.

5. Does your employer have a right to see your medical records? NO, unless you consent.

6. When you die, does your family have a right to see your medical records? NO, not necessarily. Only the executor or the administrator of your estate has the right, just as you did before death, to agree to release your medical records to others.

7. Do you have a right to see your own medical records? Generally, YES. Your physician, hospital or nursing home actually owns the medical record itself. You have the right to inspect or copy these records. If you are a psychiatric patient, your physician may refuse to allow you to inspect your records if he or she believes such access to this information would be injurious to your physical or mental well being. In that case, you have the right to have the records sent to the physician or psychologist of your choice.

8. Should hospitals prepare a report when they know that a disabled person has been abused or neglected? YES. A report should be made immediately to the county’s Department of Social Services.

9. Will your medical records remain confidential if you have cancer? YES, with one exception. When the doctor diagnoses your cancer, your name, address, date of birth, race and sex must be reported to the state’s central cancer registry within 60 days.

10. Are hospitals required to report gunshot wounds, poisonings, stabbings, and other criminal injuries to the sheriff or police? YES. Hospitals may also provide information to law enforcement in certain situations involving crimes committed on the hospital campus, if you are a victim of a crime, or in other limited circumstances.

11. Should your hospital share your medical records when you are transferred to another hospital or nursing home? YES. Confidentiality of medical records does not prohibit health care providers from sharing your records among themselves as part of providing you with health care services. If you leave the hospital for a nursing home, your medical records, or copies of them, should be transferred with you.

Advance Directives

You alone have the fundamental right to make basic decisions regarding your medical care and treatment. You have the right to accept, refuse or withdraw any treatment. You may wish, in the event of a terminal illness, that your life not be prolonged by extraordinary means, including artificial nutrition and hydration, when you have no reasonable medical expectation of recovery.

When the time comes for that decision to be made, you may not be physically or mentally able to make decisions. To be prepared in advance and to assure that your wishes are followed, you can sign a legal document called a living will. You may also name a health care agent in a legal document called a Health Care Power of Attorney. An agent under a Health Care Power of Attorney can make medical treatment decisions for you when you cannot make decisions for yourself.

Living wills and Health Care Power of Attorney documents are also known as “Advance Directives.” In each document you may decide about your future medical treatment. The living will (also known as a Declaration of a Desire for a Natural Death) and a Health Care Power of Attorney are two different documents, which serve different purposes.

Living Wills:

A living will (Declaration of a Desire for a Natural Death) is authorized by the North Carolina General Statutes. It differs in principle from a last will and testament in that a living will sets out your desires for medical care and treatment. A will, on the other hand, states how you wish your assets to be disposed of upon your death.

A living will becomes effective when you can no longer make decisions about your own medical care and have been diagnosed by your physician and one additional physician as having one of the following conditions: an incurable condition that will result in your death within a relatively short period of time, you become unconscious and your physicians determine that you will never regain consciousness, or you suffer from advanced dementia or any other substantial loss of your cognitive ability and your physicians determine that you loss is not reversible. Upon such a diagnosis, it allows you to direct that your physician may withhold or discontinue extraordinary means, including artificial nutrition and/or hydration. It may be revoked by you at any time, and it will not affect any insurance policies you may have. You must sign the living will when you are a competent adult in the presence of two witnesses who (1) are not related to you by blood or marriage; (2) are not entitled to any part of your estate when you die, by inheritance or claim; (3) are not your attending physician, an employee of your attending physician or an employee of a nursing home/group care home where you are a patient; and (4) do not have a claim against your estate at the time you sign the document. It must be sworn to by the two witnesses before a notary public of the State of North Carolina, or by a clerk or assistant clerk of the Superior Court of North Carolina.

A copy of your living will should be given to your physician to place in your medical record. If you change doctors, make sure your new physician has a copy. Do not give your original living will away. Keep your original signed document at home with your important papers. Inform your family and friends where you have placed it. Do not keep the original of your living will in a safe deposit box since others may not be able to locate it in an emergency. You can also register your living will and other advance directives with the North Carolina Secretary of State, where they will be kept in a secure database. You will be given a password and code that you or your healthcare providers can use to go online and retrieve your advance directives from the secure database.

In order to be legally effective in North Carolina, your living will must include, at a minimum, the following two statements:

1. The declaration of your desire that extraordinary means and/or artificial nutrition or hydration not be used to prolong your life if it is determined that your condition is terminal and incurable, or if you are diagnosed as being in a persistent vegetative state (depending on your instructions); and

2. A statement that you are aware that the living will allows your doctor to withhold or discontinue extraordinary medical treatment and/or artificial nutrition or hydration (depending on your instructions).

As a result, you should beware of using a living will form provided in a magazine article or distributed by a national organization. These forms may not contain the necessary statements to make them valid in North Carolina. A form that meets all of North Carolina’s requirements is provided in the North Carolina General Statutes. It can be accessed on the Internet at: http://www.ncmedsoc.org/non_members/public_resources/livingwillform.pdf.

In addition, many hospitals routinely assist patients in executing living wills upon admission. The legal resources provided at the end of this handbook may also be able to assist you with preparing a living will.

Health Care Powers Of Attorney:

A Health Care Power of Attorney names another person or other persons to specifically make health care decisions for you after you are either incompetent to make decisions for yourself or unable to communicate these decisions. If you are age 18 or older and are competent, you may name a health care agent. The health care agent must be age 18 or older, and may not be an individual who provides you health care for compensation. A health care agent is legally authorized in the Health Care Power of Attorney to make and communicate health care decisions for you if you become unable to make or communicate health care decisions for yourself, including the power to authorize the withholding or withdrawal of life sustaining procedures. If possible, you should name a second health care agent in the event the first person you name is unavailable or predeceases you.

The authority of your health care agent becomes effective when, if at all, the physician you have designated in writing determines you do not have the medical or physical ability or capacity to make your own health care decisions. For as long as you cannot make your own decisions, the health care agent is permitted to make these decisions. However, the health care agent is only authorized to make and communicate health care decisions for you. The Health Care Power of Attorney does not give the agent authority or control over your property and financial affairs.

A Health Care Power of Attorney may be revoked by you at any time by revoking it in writing, by making another Health Care Power of Attorney, or by any other means of communication you may have. To effectively revoke a Health Care Power of Attorney, you must tell your health care agent and your attending physician.

Important Information About Advance Directives:

If you have completed a last will and testament or a power of attorney for financial matters, do not assume that either of these documents provides for or will assure that your medical care and treatment wishes will be honored. You will need a living will and/or a Health Care Power of Attorney to assure that your specific health care wishes, if any, are followed by your physician or by a health care facility.

Because advance directive documents have life and death implications, you should fully understand the documents before you sign your name. You may wish to consult with your family, physician, attorney or religious advisor about any questions you may have. If you sign both a living will and a Health Care Power of Attorney, make sure your instructions in each document are consistent. While you do not have to have a living will or a Health Care Power of Attorney, having both documents is a good idea.

You can obtain a pamphlet describing living wills and health care powers of attorney, and a pamphlet titled “Living Wills and Health Care Powers of Attorney,” from the North Carolina Bar Association, P.O. Box 3688, Cary, NC 27519. The phone number is 1-800-662-7407. This information is also available on the North Carolina Bar Association’s website at www.ncbar.org/Public-pro-bono/publications/this-is-the-law-pamphlets.aspx.

Who May Make Decisions If I Do Not Execute An Advance Directive?
If you do not sign an advance directive document, North Carolina law authorizes others to make health care treatment decisions for you based upon what they believe you would have decided. The following are the persons, in order of priority, who by law may make medical decisions for you if you do not have a living will or Health Care Power of Attorney and you are unable to make your own health care decisions:

1. Your legal guardian.
2. Your spouse.
3. A majority of your parents, children or brothers and sisters.
4. Your attending physician.

Registering Advance Health Care Directives with the State:
Although your family members and health care agents may be aware that you have executed Advance Health Care Directives, they may not always have immediate access to the executed documents when they are needed. To help address these concerns, the North Carolina Office of Secretary of State has established an Advance Health Care Directive Registry which allows residents to register their living wills, Health Care Powers of Attorney, and Declarations of Anatomical Gifts (organ donation) in a central registry maintained by the Secretary of State. Documents registered with the Secretary of State are available over the Internet 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. In order to protect your privacy, your documents are assigned both a file number and password and can only be accessed by you or your family members and others to whom you provide this information. You do not have to file directives with the Registry for them to be valid. The Registry is entirely voluntary. There is a $10 filing fee for each directive you file with the Registry. For more information on the Registry or to obtain a registration sheet for the Registry, please write the Registry at: Advance Health Care Directive Registry, Department of the Secretary of State, Post Office Box 29622, Raleigh, North Carolina 27626. You may also contact the Registry by phone at (919) 821-7867 or via www.secretary.state.nc.us/ahcdr/.

Again, please remember that documents filed in the registry are accessible only over the Internet and are accessible only if a person attempting to access the document enters both the file number and password. Documents filed in the registry as well as file numbers, passwords and any other information maintained in the Advance Health Care Directive Registry are confidential and are not subject to disclosure to outsiders by the Agency. The North Carolina Secretary of State is prohibited by law from releasing this information to outsiders at any time.

Health and Life Insurance

As your retirement approaches, your insurance needs may change. You may need more or different health insurance but less life insurance. Choosing what insurance to buy or continue is an important decision. Your best protection is to be a well-informed, careful buyer so that your insurance coverage is no more and no less than what you presently need.

Life Insurance:
Most people buy life insurance either to provide financial protection for their dependents or as an investment. If you have policies you bought years ago or are thinking about starting a new policy, there are some basic questions you should ask yourself. You may also need to know what certain insurance words mean.

Term Insurance means that you get a certain amount of life insurance coverage for a specific period of time. There is no cash value for the policy and the coverage ends at the end of the term. For example, you may have a policy that insures your life until you reach age 65. At age 65 the policy terminates and you have no more coverage.

Whole Life Insurance (also called straight life or ordinary life) provides life insurance coverage for your entire life. There is a cash value that you may receive if you decide to terminate the policy. That value increases the longer the policy is in force. Typically, whole life policies are more expensive than term insurance.

Cash Value means the amount of money you can get by terminating your policy. In other words, you can get an amount of money, usually much less than the face amount of the policy, by voluntarily stopping your coverage before your death. You must notify the insurance company immediately if you make this decision. Otherwise, if you just stop paying the premium, the company may continue your coverage by taking premiums against your cash value. In other words, you can get an amount of money, usually much less than the face amount of the policy, by voluntarily stopping your coverage before your death. You must notify the insurance company immediately if you make this decision. Otherwise, if you just stop paying the premium, the company may continue your coverage by taking premiums against your cash value instead of paying the policy.

Face value means the amount of coverage you have. For example, if you pay for a policy that has a face value of $5,000, your beneficiary will be paid $5,000 if you die while the policy is in force. Some policies provide additional coverage, such as Questions To Ask About Life Insurance:
Some questions you should ask yourself about your life insurance needs are:

• Is anyone dependent upon me for his or her financial support? If yes, how long will this be true?
• If I die, will there be expenses not otherwise taken care of that someone will have to pay? If yes, are there other, more economical, arrangements that could be made?
• Am I primarily interested in leaving money to someone? If yes, would I do better to save my money in a bank account or other investment than to pay premiums on an insurance policy?

Keep in mind that, for most people, the need for life insurance coverage declines as children grow up. Also, the amount of cash value you can get back from an insurance policy is usually low compared to the amount of premiums you have paid.

Health Insurance:
Just like life insurance, health insurance policies should be carefully considered to be sure that they meet your needs. For many people, the best way to fill in gaps in Medicare's coverage is Medicaid, the state's medical assistance program. For those who are not eligible for Medicaid, shopping for supplemental (Medigap) coverage through a private insurance company can be confusing and difficult.

Although they may use different terms, most policies will exclude the same types of coverage excluded by Medicare. Be careful! “Medically necessary,” “customary charge,” and other terms in an insurance policy may mean that you are not purchasing coverage for the actual cost of medical care. Also, remember that a well known insurance company’s plan is not necessarily the best. Some lesser-known policies may offer better coverage than those that sound most familiar.

Finally, look for a policy that effectively supplements Medicare Part B. You will need the most assistance in this area. Don’t be taken in by policies which offer up to $50,000 or more in hospital protection. In most cases you would have to be hospitalized for “medically necessary” services for over six months in order to benefit from these fantastic offers, and such lengthy hospitalizations are rare. When you don’t understand a policy that you are considering signing, have someone you trust read it for you. The Senior Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP) at 1-800-443-9354 will provide you with assistance in selecting the most appropriate type of insurance for your needs.

Long Term Care Insurance:
Medicare and private health insurance pay for only brief nursing home stays. You may want to consider purchasing long term care insurance from a private insurance company, to protect you in the event you require care in a nursing home or your own home for a long period of time.

Several types of policies are available. You should be sure that you understand the benefits the policy will provide before you purchase it, and what the policy excludes from coverage. These policies are relatively new and there are many “bugs” to be worked out. If you do not shop carefully, and buy from a financially sound insurance company, the protection you thought you were buying may not be there when you need it. In addition, if you think you will qualify for Medicaid, you may not want to purchase private long term care insurance, as Medicaid will cover your costs.

Be sure the insurance company or agent gives you a copy of a publication called The Shopper’s Guide to Long Term Care Insurance published by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. In addition, free counseling about long term care insurance is available through SHIIP (1-800-443-9354). Or go online to www.ncshiip.com/.

Before You Buy:
Before you purchase an insurance policy, you may wish to contact the North Carolina Insurance Commissioner’s toll free Consumer Hotline at 1-800-546-5664. You may also wish to contact the Senior Health Insurance Information Program (SHIIP) at 1-800-443-9354 for helpful information on purchasing health insurance and long term care insurance. Finally, many consumer publications contain useful articles on buying insurance. Go online to www.ncshiip.com/.
The Con Game

Older adults are often the victims of con artists and their games. Con games are attempts to swindle you out of money, property or other valuables. Con artists may, for example, pose as bank examiners and request that you withdraw money from your bank account and “temporarily” turn it over to them. Swindlers may convince you that this is all part of a test the bank is conducting to uncover a dishonest bank employee. Do not withdraw money from your bank at the suggestion of strangers.

Here are some common schemes you should watch out for:

1. Strangers selling anything door-to-door. This includes anyone attempting to sell legal or financial products, especially insurance salespersons who insist you must make your first payment immediately. Frequently the insurance company has never heard of them and is not responsible for your claims. Seniors are also common targets for the sale of a “living trust” by a non-attorney salesperson, and are never given an opportunity to consult with an attorney about the trust. The final product is often poorly drafted, fails to accomplish the promised estate planning goals, and such “estate plan” often costs more than what attorneys would typically charge for a comprehensive and more thorough and sound estate planning services. The North Carolina State Bar considers such practice the unauthorized practice of law and harmful to consumers, and the preparation of a will or trust by a non-licensed attorney is illegal in North Carolina.

2. Glasses or hearing aids sold at bargain rates by unlicensed sales people. Ask your doctor before you buy.

3. Products advertised as miracle cures. This is known as quackery. Every year people spend millions of dollars on products advertised as cures for arthritis, cancer, baldness and insomnia. If medical science has not found a cure for an ailment, then do not buy a product advertised to cure it.

4. Contributions to charity. Make sure the money goes to a legitimate charity. If you have doubts whether a charity is legitimate, call your local Better Business Bureau. Also, do not feel pressured to make donations solicited over the phone or in person. Most legitimate charities will be happy to provide you with additional information by mail upon request rather than requiring immediate contributions. Research nonprofit and charitable groups before you donate. Nonprofits are generally required to share their financial and tax reporting information with the public. You can contact the charity itself and request a copy of its recent tax return, IRS form 990. Several charities make their tax returns available online. You may also find out more information about a charity or nonprofit at the North Carolina Attorney General’s office at the information below, or visit its website: http://www.ncdoj.gov/Consumer/Charities-and-Non-Profits.aspx. Other useful websites for charitable donors are www.guidestar.org and http://apps.irs.gov/app/eos/.

5. Opportunities that are “too good to be true.” Before you spend any money, talk your plans over with someone you trust. Remember the old saying, “if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.”

6. Home repair frauds. Do not agree to let someone who is “just driving by” work on your home. Shop around before you spend money on home improvements, and ask for references from satisfied customers.

7. Any salesperson who pressures you to buy. If you have any doubt about whether you want something after you have brought it home, remember that North Carolina law gives you three days after signing a sales agreement to tell the seller you have changed your mind. Make sure you get a phone number, or have some way to contact the sales person. This law applies to credit sales made at your home. It does not include clothes, cars, farm equipment, or goods to be used within ten days in connection with a funeral.

8. Pigeon Drop. There are many variations of this scheme. Typically, you are approached by one member of a con artist team. Once the con artist has become friendly with you, the partner approaches the two of you with a story about having found a large sum of money. You are invited to share in the good fortune but are asked for “good faith” money while details about how to divide the “found money” are worked out. Once you turn over your good faith money, you never see the con artist team again.

9. If you own a timeshare, beware of anyone attempting to help you sell it and beware of anyone offering to buy it. The FBI has recently become involved in the investigation and prosecution of several companies attempting to defraud timeshare owners. If you suspect you have been defrauded, consult your state Attorney General’s Office.

10. Anyone posing as a “Veterans Benefits Planner” or “Veterans Advocate” who is not affiliated with the Veterans Administration. These people are often insurance sales people, and while they promise that their services are “free,” they are usually attempting to sell you an annuity or a trust. If you are approached by such person, inquire about his/her credentials: if he is attempting to sell you a trust, is he a licensed attorney in this state? Is he accredited by the Veterans Administration? How much of a commission will he earn if you buy his product? Are there other opportunities to qualify for the same benefits that don't require the purchase of his product? This last question is extremely important, as often an annuity may be a poor investment choice, and other planning opportunities may exist that are better suited for your unique situation and don't involve such a substantial financial loss. Furthermore, such individuals may not be educated about other public benefits, such as Medicaid, that may be available to help you with long term care concerns, and poor VA benefits planning can sometimes jeopardize a family's eligibility for Medicaid. The better approach is to consult with your Veterans Service Officer and possibly an attorney accredited before the Veterans Administration and knowledgeable about other public long term care benefit programs. Be aware that the Veterans Administration restricts what private companies may charge for these services, so be sure that you are not being charged illegal fees for services that are made available for free by qualified professionals.

A healthy dose of skepticism goes a long way. Keep in mind the old adage, “there is no such thing as a free lunch.” Often, people assume that if they attend a seminar at a community center, church, assisted living facility, or nursing home, that the presenter at the seminar has been thoroughly vetted as a legitimate and trustworthy individual. This is not always the case, and regardless of how or where you encounter someone attempting to restructure your investments or sell you something, you should always use your best judgment about the recommended product or plan and investigate the people attempting to give you advice.

The North Carolina Department of the Secretary of State now offers certain services and protections for investors. The Secretary of State has an Investor Education Program and regulates and licenses investment advisors and their representatives. More information is available at www.sosnc.com, and you can find the following information at this website: whether your advisor is properly registered, education resources for investors, and recent alerts and tips. You can also call this division at (800)-688-4507.

Con artists are slick. Keep your guard up. Be skeptical. Watch out for anyone using the following words and phrases: “minor contract,” “contract a mere formality,” “something for nothing,” “miracle cure,” “last chance land deal” (or “last chance” on any product), “get rich quick,” “a deal too good to be true,” “earn big money at home,” “special once in a lifetime offer.”

Listen carefully to what salespeople are saying, particularly if they are in your home. Do not be rushed into any purchase. If the transaction is very hurried and requires you to make immediate decisions or take immediate action, a swindle is probably in the making. Many con artists try to take advantage of your loneliness and to make you think that you can leave more money for your children if you cooperate with the con artist.

Be an informed consumer. If you need to consult advisors, ask for referrals from friends, family, or from an existing professional relationship.

Report suspicious people to the Police or Sheriff’s Department. If you do not, they may cheat someone else. If you ever have questions about your rights and protections as a consumer, or if you suspect that you’ve been scammed, contact the North Carolina Department of Justice's Consumer Protection Section at:

North Carolina Department of Justice
Consumer Protection Section
PO. Box 629
Raleigh, NC 27602-0629
1-877-5-NO-SCAM
Telephone: (919) 716-6000
Fax: (919) 716-6050
www.ncdoj.com

Identity Theft

You can protect yourself from identity theft by safeguarding your personal information. Information such as email and online banking passwords, ATM PIN numbers, bank account numbers, Social Security numbers, and other personal IDs and log-in information can be used to both fraudulently access your accounts and open new accounts in your name. Everyday devices such as smart phones, IPads and computers have become treasure troves of personal information for thieves. Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and other social networks may provide the necessary details of your life to change or access your passwords and financial information. Consider saving personal information and passwords to offsite storage such as, Google or ICloud instead of on your cell phone, IPad or computer. If you decide not to use offsite storage, set up your devices so that the data can be remotely erased if they are lost or stolen.

The North Carolina Attorney General reports that more than 11 million people in the US are victims of ID theft each year; about 300,000 people are victimized annually in North Carolina.

The North Carolina Attorney General’s Office suggests that you protect yourself by following these tips:

- Never give your Social Security number, birth date, PIN number, or account number/password to anyone who you do not know, even if they purport to represent a legitimate company.

• Don’t carry your social security card in your wallet and don’t print your driver’s license number, birth date, or Social Security number on your checks.

• Use automatic deposit for payroll, social security or other federal benefit checks. To sign up for automatic deposit of Social Security checks and other federal benefit payments, call (800) 333-1795 or go to www.godirect.org to make the switch to electronic payments.

• Track your own credit report for changes. Request a free credit report from a different credit bureau every four months. To get a free report, go online to www.annualcreditreport.com or call 1-877-322-8228.

• Avoid using easily available information for your PINs or passwords such as your mother’s maiden name, birthdates, pet names, phone numbers, SS numbers or a series of consecutive numbers, and your street name or house number.

• Protect your mail with a locked mailbox and by opting out of preapproved credit card applications by calling 1(888)5-OPT-OUT or visit www.optoutprescreen.com.

• Beware of phishing, emails that claim to come from a company or charity you do business with asking you to confirm your personal information or account number.

• All North Carolina residents can freeze their credit at no cost by contacting the credit bureaus listed below. By freezing your credit you prevent others from opening new credit lines or getting credit in your name.

• Shred any documents that you don’t need that contain personal information. This includes old bank statements, insurance forms, credit applications, receipts, and pre-approved credit card offers.

• Carry only the information that you need in your wallet. Leave items such as your Social Security card and extra credit cards at home. Make a photo copy of all items in your wallet (front and back) and keep the copies in a safe place in the event a card or wallet is lost or stolen.

• Use one credit card for all Internet purchases. Do not send credit card numbers by email.

If you are the victim of identity theft, the North Carolina Attorney General’s Office recommends that you take the following steps to report the crime:

1. File a police report in the community in which the identity theft took place. If that is not possible, file a police report in your community. Ask for a copy of the police report.

2. Contact each of the three major credit bureaus (Equifax, TransUnion, and Experian) to flag your accounts with fraud alert and to freeze your credit.

• Flag the accounts in writing and by calling the bureaus.

• Obtain a free credit report from each bureau. Review the reports for accuracy.

• Notify the bureaus of discrepancies in writing and by phone.

• Wait several months and review your credit reports again to ensure that discrepancies were cleared up and no more fraudulent activity has occurred.

3. Close any accounts that have been tampered with or fraudulently opened using your information.

4. File a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (www.ftc.gov) by calling 1-877-IDTHEFT (1-877-438-4338). When reporting, it is important for you to keep a record of what agency/company you called, the person with whom you spoke, the date you called, and any other important information from the report. This may include the actions the agent was taking or the date of any follow action by you.

5. If you have a passport, notify the passport office in writing to be on the lookout for anyone ordering a new passport in your name. Washington Passport Agency, 1111 19th Street, N.W., Washington DC 20524; (202) 647-0518.

6. Call the Social Security Administration’s fraud hotline (1-800-269-0271) to report fraudulent use of your Social Security number. Order a copy of your Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement (PEBES) and check it for accuracy—the thief might be using your Social Security number for employment purposes

If you have been the victim of identity theft, take action quickly, the North Carolina Department Attorney General’s office provides an ID Theft Victim Tool Kit to assist you at www.ncdoj.gov.

Credit Bureaus:

Equifax: P.O. Box 740241 Atlanta, GA 30374-0241
Fraud reports: 1-800-525-6285
Ordering credit report: 1-800-685-1111
www.equifax.com/fcra

Experian: P.O. Box 9352 Allen, TX 75013
Unwanted Solicitation: Phone Calls and Junk Mail

The National Do Not Call Registry became effective on Oct. 1, 2003. This list prevents most telemarketers from contacting you. The Do-Not-Call registry, however, will not prevent all unwanted calls. It will not cover the following:

- Calls from organizations with which you have established a business relationship. Note, however, that if you ask a company with whom you have an existing business relationship to place your number on the do-not-call list, the company must honor your request;
- Calls for which you have given prior written consent;
- Calls which are not commercial or do not include unsolicited advertisements;
- Calls by or on behalf of tax-exempt non-profit organizations. This includes political organizations and charities. Telephone surveyors are also exempt.

You can delete your phone number only by calling toll-free 1-888-382-1222 from the telephone number you want to delete or by going to www.donotcall.gov. After you contact the registry to delete it, it will be removed from the National Do-Not-Call Registry by the next day. Just be aware that telemarketers have up to 31 days to access information about your deletion and add your number back to their call lists, if they choose to.

In 2003, North Carolina passed a similar Do-Not-Call Registry that ensures that North Carolina residents who sign up for the National Do-Not-Call Registry are automatically protected by the North Carolina law. No further sign up is necessary to benefit from the state laws. The North Carolina Registry also protects North Carolina residents if the national registry is struck down in court.

You may also remove yourself from junk mail lists, and there are several ways to do this. One way is to register with the Do Not Mail List, which is a free service offered by DirectMail.com. You can also contact the Direct Marketing Association. You can sign up for this list by mail or through the Internet at https://www.dmachoice.org/dma/static/pdf/registration_form.pdf. To sign up by mail, you will need to fill out a form located here:

Once you have completed the form, mail it to DMAchoice, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 643, Carmel, NY 10512. There is a $1 fee for registering by mail. You may also register through the Internet by going to the following address:

https://www.dmachoice.org/dma/member/home.action.

There is no charge for registering online. DMAchoice also allows you to stop mail being sent to a deceased individual or to a dependent person in your care. You can find the Deceased Do Not Contact list here: http://www.ims-dm.com/cgi/ddnc.php; and the Do Not Contact for Caregivers List here: http://www.ims-dm.com/cgi/dncc.php. Both services are free.

The Direct Marketing Association estimates that it may take up to three months for you to see a reduction in the mail you receive. Your phone number and address will remain on these lists for five years; after that, you must reregister.

Age Discrimination In Employment

If you are a worker over the age of 40, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) protects you from age discrimination in hiring, firing, layoffs, pay, promotions, fringe benefits, and other job matters. You are not entitled to the protections available under the ADEA if you work for, or apply to work for, one of the following employers: Private employer with fewer than 20 workers; Federal, state and local government; and/or Labor unions. The ADEA is a federal law, and provides the same protections for workers in all states.

When The Law Does Not Apply:

The law does not apply if the age requirement or limit is:

1. Necessary for the job (for example, actors needed to play young parts);
2. Part of a seniority system or retirement, pension, or insurance plan;
3. Based on a good reason other than age (such as physical fitness).
4. If you are fired for a good cause, the law is not violated.
What To Do If You Have Been Discriminated Against:

If you are an employee or job applicant over the age of 40 and you think you have been discriminated against because of your age, you can file a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). If you are considering a lawsuit based on age discrimination, you must file a charge (complaint) with the EEOC before you may file a lawsuit.

Age discrimination complaints can be made in writing, by phone or in person at any EEOC office. The complaint generally must be made within 180 days of the act of discrimination. If you feel that you have been discriminated against, it is best to contact the EEOC as soon as possible. The EEOC will write up your complaint and send it to you to sign. The EEOC will then try to resolve the problem informally by talking with you and with your employer.

If that does not work, they will investigate the charge. If the EEOC finds discrimination after investigating, it will again try to settle the complaint by negotiating with you, your supervisor, and anyone else who was involved in the discriminatory act. If no discrimination is found, EEOC will notify you that you have 90 days to bring your own suit, and EEOC has nothing further to do with your case.

If the EEOC chooses, it may file suit on your behalf. Otherwise, you have to file suit yourself, if you are still dissatisfied. Employers are not allowed to fire or discipline workers because they complain to EEOC, and you do not need to be fired before you can file a complaint with the EEOC. As soon as possible after the discrimination occurs, you should write down exactly what happened, who was involved, and the date and time of the discriminatory act. Because of the waiting periods involved, and because lawsuits can sometimes take years to resolve, gathering information and documenting incidents while they are still fresh is very important.

EEOC Offices In North Carolina:

Charlotte District Headquarters
129 West Trade Street
Suite 400, Charlotte, NC 28202
1-800-669-4000
www.eeocoffice.com

Greensboro EEOC Field Office
2303 West Meadowview Road
Suite 201, Greensboro, NC 27407
1-800-669-4000
www.eeocoffice.com

Raleigh Area EEOC Field Office
1309 Annapolis Drive

Going To Court:

As noted above, before you can file a private suit in state or federal court, you must first file a complaint with the EEOC. You must then allow the EEOC time to investigate your charge. If the EEOC has not completed their investigation within six months, you may request permission to proceed with your lawsuit, but if you do, the EEOC will end their investigation. When the EEOC has finished their investigation (or if you ask them to stop so you may sue), they will issue a “Notice of Right to Sue.” This notice is very important, because you must be sure that your lawsuit is filed within 90 days of receiving notice from the EEOC that they have concluded their investigation, or you lose the right to sue under the federal law.

When a court rules that there has been age discrimination in employment, the judge can order an employer to hire you or to reinstate you, to give you back pay and award you attorneys’ fees and any other appropriate relief.

Age Discrimination In North Carolina:

North Carolina has an Equal Employment Practice Act which states that discrimination on the basis of age is against the public policy of North Carolina. The Human Relations Council in the North Carolina Department of Administration will investigate and try to resolve age discrimination complaints that the EEOC refers to them. In some situations (for example, if the time to file an EEOC charge has passed before you learn of the discrimination), you may choose to file a lawsuit under the state law, rather than the federal law. Because decisions about what kinds of case to file and determination of what other claims you may have can be very technical, it is important to consult with an attorney promptly when you think there has been discrimination. An attorney can help you document your situation and identify important witnesses while that information is still fresh and readily available, and she may also be able to help you resolve your situation without a lawsuit or long delays.

Voting Rights

All the rights and laws described in this booklet are the result of (1) laws passed by legislators or (2) a judge’s judicial interpretation of those laws. Lawmakers and most judges are elected officials. It is, therefore, particularly important to vote if you are interested in having an impact on these rights and laws.

North Carolina offers a comprehensive Voter Guide at http://ncvoterguide.org/. This site allows you to check whether you are registered to vote, find your polling place, see results of recent elections, contact your elections board, as well as many other useful features. The North Carolina State Board of Elections provides certain accommodations for people who have physical barriers to registering and voting in the ordinary manner. Registrars can come to your house and register you if you cannot go to the county election board’s office. You may also download and complete a Voter Registration Application by going here: http://www.ncsbe.gov/content.aspx?id=1&s=1. You may then mail your completed application to your county Board of Elections. Just make sure that your application is post-marked at least 25 days before an election. Otherwise, you may not be eligible to vote in that election.

When election time comes, if you are unable to leave your house you may submit an absentee ballot by mail. Any registered North Carolina voter can request an absentee ballot by mail. You can call your local Board of Elections to request a ballot. You can also find more information about absentee voting by visiting this website: http://www.ncsbe.gov/content.aspx?id=133. Also, if it is difficult for you to get inside the polling place on Election Day, you may vote at the curbside. For further information about these and other accommodations, you should contact your county’s Board of Elections.

Housing

Renting:

Many people need to rent a house after they reach retirement age. Here are some guidelines for tenants to follow.

Obtain As Much Information As Possible About The House Or Apartment You Intend To Rent Before You Sign a Lease.

Shop around thoroughly. Decide on the amount of rent you can afford and the type of house or apartment you want. Ask whether water, utilities, cable, and internet services are included in the rent. Thoroughly inspect the property that you are considering. Test every light, overhead fan, faucet, electric garage door, heating/air conditioning control, appliance, and flush every toilet to make sure all are in good working order prior to signing any lease. Point out any problem areas and damage you see to the rental agent and keep notes for yourself. Do not be afraid to ask questions, because it might be too late after you have signed the lease. Also, ask other tenants or neighbors about the property. Their experiences with the landlord and the housing can be helpful. Some of the subjects that you should inquire about are listed below:

1. Insulation;
2. Garage Door or Gate Keys;
3. Heating and cooling systems;
4. Pets;
5. Security;
6. Parking;
7. Type of people living there (old, young, married, single, permanent, transient, etc.);
8. Quality of construction;
9. Availability of public transportation;
10. Yard work (who handles this and cost);
11. Facilities for handicapped; and
12. Utilities (cost and availability).

Discrimination:

It is illegal under federal law for a landlord to discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, familial status, and handicap (disability).

If you have a physical or mental disability, the landlord may not refuse to let you make reasonable modifications to your dwelling unit at your own expense. The landlord must make reasonable changes to its rules, policies, and practices, or services to allow a disabled person to use the housing. For example, an apartment complex with unassigned parking must honor a request for a mobility-impaired person to have a reserved space near his/her apartment. Any buildings constructed after 1991 must have public accommodations for persons with disabilities. For example, doors and hallways must be wide enough for wheelchairs.

Condos/Home Owners’ Associations:

If you are planning to rent a condominium or a dwelling with a home owner’s association, you should also be sure you understand whether you are responsible for paying any association dues or maintenance charges for the common areas in addition to your monthly rent.

Be Sure You Understand Your Lease:

Insist on a written lease. Read it carefully and do not hesitate to ask questions. The lease should clearly define the obligations of both you and the landlord. Do not hesitate to ask the landlord to read through the lease with you and explain anything that you do not understand. If you make any changes to the lease, be sure that the changes are set forth in writing in the lease. If you are not satisfied with the answers you get, it may be wise to consult a lawyer. This initial expense may help you avoid problems later.

A lease for a period of three years or more should be recorded with the county Register of Deeds. Never sign a lease until you have read it and are sure that you understand and agree with its contents. Remember, when you sign, you are telling the world that you understand and accept the conditions of the lease. Be sure to get a copy of the lease, showing all signatures and attachments.
Security Deposits:
Your landlord can and probably will require you to pay a security deposit. This deposit is supposed to guarantee that you will take good care of the rented property while you are there. The required deposit cannot exceed two weeks rent if you are paying by the week, one and one-half month's rent if you are paying by the month, and two months' rent if you are paying rent for longer periods.

Your landlord must keep your deposit in a trust account in a North Carolina bank or savings institution, or furnish a bond from a North Carolina insurance company. This information must be given to you within thirty days of paying the deposit. When you move out, the deposit must be refunded to you within 30 days, if you have kept your part of the agreement. You should give your landlord a forwarding address so that s/he can send your security deposit monies to you when you move. Your landlord can keep the deposit money to pay for:

1. Any rent that you owe. Note that if your landlord allows you to leave the rental unit before the end of the lease term, be sure to get that agreement in writing.

2. Damages to the property, except for damages from normal wear and tear.

3. Cost of renting if you leave before your lease expires.

4. Any bills due, such as repair bills, which someone else may hold your landlord responsible for.

5. Any reasonable fees charged for pets. Note that most pet fees are non-refundable.

If your landlord keeps any part of your deposit (other than a non-refundable pet fee) the landlord must list the damages and present them to you in writing. If your landlord does not explain why all of your deposit was not returned, you should see a county magistrate about a small claims action to recover it. If you want to ask an attorney to represent you in small claims court, you may even be able to recover reasonable attorneys’ fees. (NCGS § 42-50 through 42-56). You can also contact your local Legal Aid office to learn if you qualify for free legal counseling or representation. Failure to respond within the specified time could result in the loss of your rights.

Your Landlord’s Duties:
Your landlord must:

1. Comply with the local building and housing code laws.

2. Make repairs and keep the place fit and habitable.

3. Keep common areas safe.

4. Keep in good, safe working order all electrical, plumbing, heating, air conditioning and other appliances supplied by the landlord. Unless there is an emergency, the landlord must be told in writing of any problems.

5. Provide operable smoke detectors.

6. Tell you if the property is sold.

7. Tell you in writing, of any complaints about the way you are treating the property.

8. Leave you alone while you are renting. The law makes some exceptions to this rule, such as the landlord’s right to inspect the property, but generally, while you rent you may live as if you owned the property. Other exceptions include the need to make repairs, cases of emergency, and showing the property to new tenants or purchasers. You may not borrow money against rental property. (NCGS § 42-42)

Your Duties As A Tenant:
As a tenant, by law you are required to:

1. Keep your part of the property clean and safe – do not create any unsafe or unsanitary conditions in the areas that you use.

2. Dispose of all ashes, rubbish, garbage and other waste in a clean and safe manner.

3. Keep all plumbing fixtures clean.

4. Do not deliberately or negligently damage or remove any part of the property or knowingly permit anyone to do so.

5. Comply with any obligations of local building and housing codes. You are responsible for any damage that you cause to the property other than ordinary wear and tear. (NCGS § 42-43)

Tenant Remedies:
If your landlord does not keep his or her obligations, you should tell the landlord at once. You should make any complaints or reports in writing, keeping a copy for yourself. If that does not work, there are other things to do. If the landlord’s actions violate health or building codes, contact the health department or building inspector or whatever agency handles City Code violations in your community. You can also sue your landlord for damages in civil court, but it probably would be wise to talk with an attorney first. Legal Aid attorneys generally are familiar with these cases and they offer free or low-cost legal assistance if you qualify for their services. You may not withhold rent prior to suing your landlord.

Landlord Remedies:
If your rent is five days or more late, then your landlord may charge you a late fee. A late fee may be charged only once for each late payment. If your rent is paid monthly, a landlord may not charge more than $15 or 5 percent (5%) of the monthly rent, whichever is greater. If your rent is paid weekly, a landlord may not charge more than $4.00 or 5 percent (5%) of the weekly rent, whichever is greater. (NCGS § 42-46)

If you do not fulfill your obligations, your landlord may try to evict you. Your landlord may only evict you by filing a civil action called a summary ejectment, in which the court is asked to make you leave the property. Your landlord cannot seize your personal property or interfere with your possession of your personal property prior to bringing a summary ejectment action or prior to receiving a writ for possession of the property that you rent.

If your landlord files a summary ejectment action against you, you will receive a summons from the Clerk of Superior Court. The summons will tell you where and when you should go before the magistrate for a hearing. A copy of the complaint will come with the summons. If you receive a summons, you should contact an attorney immediately. You have a right to file an answer to that complaint which might include a counterclaim against the landlord.

At the hearing, the landlord can ask that you be evicted and that s/he be put back into possession of the rental property. The landlord may also claim any back rent and any damages under $5,000. If you lose in the magistrate’s court (“Small Claims Court”), you have 10 days to appeal the Magistrate’s decision to civil district court. In district court, you are entitled to a new trial. While the case is waiting to be heard in district court, the tenant must pay any rent due to the Clerk of Court (NCGS § 42-25.6 et seq.).

Retaliatory Eviction:

There are some times when your landlord cannot legally evict you. A complaint about bad conditions or a request for repairs is not grounds for eviction. Neither is a complaint to a government agency about a landlord’s violation of health or safety laws or any other law. You cannot be evicted for trying to enforce your rights under the lease or for joining tenants’ rights organization. (NCGS § 42-37.1)

Housing Assistance:

Housing assistance may be available from the Department of Housing and Urban Development of the United States Government (HUD) at the main website http://hud.gov. For grants go online to http://portal.hud.gov. “Section 8” housing assistance is one such program designed to allow low-income individuals (including low income older adults) to afford decent rental housing in the private market. The program is administered by your local public housing agency.

If you are accepted for participation by your local public housing agency, you will be given a Housing Choice Voucher (Section 8 Certificate), which allows you to contract with a qualified participating landlord for housing. Eligible tenants pay a portion of the fair market rent. The amount you must pay, including utilities, is about 30 percent (30%) of your adjusted gross income. HUD will pay the landlord the difference between your share and the fair market rent. Apartments and houses to be rented under the Section 8 program are inspected by HUD to ensure that they are safe, sanitary, and that the rent is within an acceptable range. For more information contact your local public housing agency at http://hud.gov/offices/pih/programs/ph/index.cfm.

Participating in the Section 8 program helps assure that lower income older adults will not spend too much of their income on housing. It also helps ensure that they can afford safe and sanitary housing in spite of limited income. Housing authorities may establish local priorities to give a preference to older adults within Section 8 or public housing, but there is no federal or state requirement to do so. Section 202 housing assistance, another HUD program, subsidizes low-income housing for elderly or handicapped individuals only.

Waiting lists for public housing and Section 8 Vouchers can be lengthy, so it may be a good idea to get on a local waiting list, provided you are income-eligible. If you have Section 8 Vouchers or live in public housing and have either an informal hearing or are being evicted, you may wish to contact your local Legal Aid office for assistance.

Protection Against Crime

Burglaries:

Do not hold an open house for thieves. Make burglars think someone is at home and make it so difficult to break into your house that burglars will either give up or get caught in the process.

Consider these steps to lessen the threat of crime:

1. Organize or participate in a Community Watch program. Work with your friends and neighbors to protect your property. For more information, write or call your local police or sheriff’s department, or:

   North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety
   www.nccrimecontrol.org
   4201 Mail Services Center
   Raleigh, NC 27699-4701
   (919) 733-4564

   2. Note all cars, trucks and vans that you have never seen in your neighborhood. Write down their license numbers or think about how to describe them.
3. Record all serial numbers of your appliances, motor vehicles, television, cameras and so on. Keep this record in a safe place and keep a copy of it somewhere away from your home.

4. Engrave or mark your possessions with your driver's license number (for example, NC1234567) and keep a written inventory of your items, including brand and model numbers. This will help discourage thieves from taking property in the first place and will also make it easier for police to contact you when they recover stolen items. You should not use your social security number to mark your possessions since that might make it easier for a thief to steal your identity.

5. Photograph your jewelry, silver, antiques and art objects. Keep these photos in a safe place.

6. Never leave a key under a doormat, cup or hanging on a nail. Leave a spare key with a trusted neighbor.

7. Never open a door to a stranger. Install a peephole and a chain lock, dead bolt or hinge lock on the door.

8. Install double cylinder dead bolt locks on all outside doors. Use window locks that can only be opened with a key. When you are at home, keep keys in these locks on the inside of your house to prevent your house from becoming a firetrap.

9. An empty garage is a dead giveaway. Keep garage doors closed and locked.

10. Make your home look and sound occupied when you are away. Leave lights burning and a radio on.

11. Light the outside of your house well. Cut back tall shrubs. Do not give burglars a place to hide.

12. Keep a dog. A barking dog is still an effective burglar alarm.

13. Only put your house or apartment number on your mailbox, not your name. A thief can look your name up in the phone book, make one call and determine that you're not home.

14. Cancel newspaper and mail deliveries if you are to be away from home for some time or ask a trusted neighbor to take them in for you. Do not allow these items to pile up.

15. If you are robbed, check immediately with all coin and metal buyers and pawnshops in your community in the hope that you can identify your property.

Assaults And Robbery:
Preventing street crimes is difficult, but you can be safer:

1. Always shop or walk with a friend. Try not to be alone on the street especially at night.

2. Do not carry large sums of money.

3. If someone approaches you, do not resist or struggle, especially if the person has a weapon. Trying to talk the person out of hurting you might work.

4. Always keep two sets of identification and keys in case one set is stolen.

5. Carry a whistle and use it to call for help.

6. Always lock your car doors when you are riding and when you leave your car for even short periods of time.

7. Avoid deserted laundromats and laundry rooms.

Rape and Domestic Violence:
Sexual assaults can happen to anyone, anytime, at any age. Statistics show that most rapes are committed not by strangers but by acquaintances of the victim. Most rapes occur at the victim's home.

If you are sexually assaulted:

1. Report the crime to the police or sheriff.

2. Go to the hospital or the doctor's office, even if you are not physically hurt. You need protection against venereal disease.

3. Do not change clothes, clean up, or bathe before you report the crime or before you go to the hospital. Your clothes and body may contain evidence of the rapist's identity.

4. Rapists are repeaters. If you do not report the crime, the rapist may hurt someone else. Telling the police what happened to you does not necessarily mean you will have to testify in court.

If you are raped or experience domestic violence, get help from your family, clergy, friends, or a rape crisis center. You will need emotional support. If you cannot find a rape crisis center or victim advocacy group in the telephone book, several resources are listed below:

Rape Victims Assistance Program
800-826-6200 (within N.C.) or (919) 733-7974.

Or, write:
Division of Victims Compensation Services
4703 Mail Service Center
Raleigh, NC 27699-4703
fax (919) 715-4209
National Sexual Assault Hotline (available 24 hours a day):
1-800-656-HOPE (2673)

North Carolina Council for Women/
Domestic Violence Commission
www.nccfwdvc.com
919-733-2455

The National Domestic Violence Hotline
(available 24 hours a day):
800-799-SAFE (7233) or 800-787-3224 (TTY)

North Carolina Coalition Against Domestic Violence www.nccadv.org
919-956-9124 or 888-232-9124

Some of your medical bills will be paid under a special program in North Carolina if you report the assault within 72 hours. Ask your doctor about this program or contact:

Rape Victims Assistance Program
Division of Victims and Compensation Services
4201 Mail Service Center
Raleigh, NC 27699-4701
(919) 733-7974 or 1-800-826-6200
www.nccrimecontrol.com

Victims Compensation Services may reimburse victims of rape, assault, child sexual abuse, domestic violence, and drunk driving, as well as the families of homicide victims for medical expenses and lost wages as a result of being an innocent victim of a crime committed in North Carolina.

North Carolina offers an address confidentiality program to help ensure that certain perpetrators cannot locate their victims. To learn more about this program, please call 919-716-6785.

How To Report A Crime:
Call the police or sheriff in your community as soon as possible. In many areas of the state you can reach them by dialing 911. If your community does not have 911 service, and you cannot find the number in the telephone directory, call the operator by dialing 0. If you do not have a phone, use a friend’s or ask someone drive you to the police station.

When you are reporting a crime, they will ask you your name, where you are calling from, what crime you are reporting, where it happened, how many people were involved, and what the people committing the crime looked like.

If you are a crime victim, you may wish to write for the following pamphlets:

North Carolina Witness/Victim Court Handbook.
N.C. Administrative Office of the Courts
P.O. Box 2448
Raleigh, NC 27602-2448
(919) 662-4300
www.nccourts.org

The “Crime Survivors: What Do I Do Now?” Handbook prepared by the North Carolina Bar Association Young Lawyers Division online at the NCBA’s website at http://www.ncbar.org/media/299705/crimesurvivorshandbook.pdf. If you do not have access to the Internet, you may also obtain a copy by contacting the NCBA at:

North Carolina Bar Association
P.O. Box 3688
Cary, NC 27519-3688
1-800-662-7407

In addition, you may also wish to contact the North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety’s Division of Victims Compensation Services, discussed above, for additional information on statewide programs and services for crime victims.

Abuse and Neglect

Abuse and neglect are defined by state and federal statutes and regulations related to the protection of the elderly and/or disabled. County Departments of Social Services (DSS) protect community dwelling elderly and/or disabled adults through Protective Services for Adults (APS).1 The Division of Health Services Regulation (DHSR) of the N.C. Department of Health and Human Services (NCDHHS) is charged with enforcing federal and state regulations designed to protect the elderly and disabled who reside in long term care facilities such as nursing homes, assisted living facilities, and continuing care retirement communities, NCDHHS accomplishes this duty through its Division of Health Service Regulation (DHSR).2 The State of North Carolina also criminally prosecutes abuse and neglect upon referral by APS, DHSR, or any complainant through local District Attorney’s offices.

The three agencies have overlapping responsibilities to the elderly. APS only has duties to adults who are alive and at risk, so if the adult has been removed from the facility where abuse or neglect occurred or has died, APS has no duty to investigate the allegation. By contrast, DHSR has the obligation to review care regularly, and in response to complaints received from anyone. Death or removal from the facility being investigated will not excuse investigation of a complaint by DHSR, although its policy is not to investigate claims greater than a year in age after the alleged incident unless federal law requires otherwise. Finally, the State of North Carolina prosecutes as felonies criminal abuse, neglect or exploitation of the elderly.
What Does “Abuse” Mean?
In the context of Adult Protective Services, the word “abuse” means the willful infliction of physical pain, injury or mental anguish, unreasonable confinement, or the willful deprivation by a caretaker of services which are necessary to maintain mental and physical health. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 108A-101. (a) (emphasis added). Upon finding evidence indicating that a person has abused, neglected, or exploited a disabled adult, the director shall notify the district attorney. (G.S. 108A-109).

In the long term care setting, “abuse” means the willful infliction of injury, unreasonable confinement, intimidation or punishment with resulting physical harm, pain or mental anguish. (10A NCAC 13D .2001(1)).

Criminal “abuse” in the context of health care or residential custodial care is “the willful or culpably negligent infliction of physical injury or the willful or culpably negligent violation of any law designed for the health or welfare of a patient or resident.” “Culpable negligence” in that setting is “conduct of a willful, gross and flagrant character, evincing reckless disregard of human life.” See N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-32.2(e) and (e1). Corporations as well as individuals may be charged with the crime of abuse or neglect in the health care or residential care setting. Id.

When the elderly victim resides in the community, different rules apply to criminal “abuse.” In the residential context, “[a] person is guilty of abuse if that person is a caretaker of a disabled or elder adult who is residing in a domestic setting and, with malice aforethought, knowingly and willfully: (i) assaults, (ii) fails to provide medical or hygienic care, or (iii) confines or restrains the disabled or elder adult in a place or under a condition that is cruel or unsafe, and as a result of the act or failure to act the disabled or elder adult suffers mental or physical injury.” N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-32.3(a). To be considered an “elder adult,” the crime victim must be at least sixty (60) years old, and must not be able to “provide for the social, medical, psychiatric, psychological, financial, or legal services necessary to safeguard [their own] rights and resources and to maintain [their own] physical and mental well-being.” N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-32.3(d)(4).

What Does “Neglect” Mean?
From an APS perspective, the word ‘neglect’ refers to a disabled adult who is either living alone and not able to provide for himself the services which are necessary to maintain his mental or physical health or is not receiving the services from his caretaker. [G.S.108A-101(m)]. For these purposes, caretaker includes custodial institutions such as nursing homes.

In the long term care setting, neglect is defined as “a failure to provide goods and services necessary to avoid physical harm, mental anguish or mental illness.” (10A NCAC 13D .2001(36)). For a detailed listing of the rights of nursing home residents in facilities receiving Medicare or Medicaid reimbursement, go to http://www.medicare.gov/download/Your_Resident_Rights_and_Protections_section.pdf.

For community dwelling elder adults, criminal “neglect” is a crime when committed by a caretaker of . . . [an] elder adult who is residing in a domestic setting [who] wantonly, recklessly, or with gross carelessness: (i) fails to provide medical or hygienic care, or (ii) confines or restrains the disabled or elder adult in a place or under a condition that is unsafe, and as a result of the act or failure to act the disabled or elder adult suffers mental or physical injury. N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-32.3(b). An elder adult is defined, for the purpose of this statute as a person who is at least sixty (60) years of age, and who is “not able to provide for [their own] social, medical, psychiatric, psychological, financial, or legal services necessary to safeguard the person’s rights and resources and to maintain [their own] physical and mental well being. N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-32.3(d)(4).

All of these actions are felonies with punishment dependent on how serious the injury sustained by the patient or elder adult. You should report any abuse, neglect, or exploitation to your local law enforcement authorities. (NCGS 14-32.2 and 14-32.3)

The main difference between abuse and neglect outside of the criminal law is that abuse requires intentional misconduct or inaction. However, when the neglect occurs at a nursing home, rest home, or assisted living facility, as described above, and the neglect is so egregious that it is deemed “culpable,” it is considered criminal abuse as well. See N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-32.2(e) and (e1). Thus, the same deprivations or injuries may amount to abuse and neglect, depending on the state of mind of the person responsible for the deprivations or injuries.

What Does “Exploit” Mean?
In the context of APS, “Exploitation” means the illegal or improper use of a disabled adult or his resources for another’s profit or advantage.” [G.S. 108A-101(j)] Criminal “exploitation,” by contrast, is defined in two ways. First, when the criminal stands in a position of trust and confidence or is in business with the elder adult, exploitation is the act of “knowingly, by deception or intimidation, obtain[ing] or use[ing], or endeavor[ing] to obtain or use, an elder adult’s [...] funds, assets, or property with the intent to temporarily or permanently deprive the elder adult [...] of the use, benefit, or possession of the funds, assets, or property, or to benefit someone other than the elder adult or disabled adult. N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-112.2(b).

Second, when the criminal “knows or reasonably should know that an elder adult [...] lacks the capacity to consent,” exploitation means “to obtain or use, endeavor to obtain or use, or conspire with another to obtain or use an elder adult’s [...] funds, assets, or property with the intent to temporarily or permanently deprive the elder adult [...] of the use, benefit, or possession of the funds, assets, or property, or benefit someone other than the elder adult or disabled adult.

As with criminal abuse or neglect of community dwelling elder adults, the exploitation statute defines an “elder adult” as a “person 60 years of age or older who is not able to provide for the social, medical, psychiatric, psychological, financial, or legal services necessary to safeguard the person's rights and resources and to maintain the person's physical and mental well-being.” N.C. Gen. Stat. 14-112.2(a)(2). The severity of punishment is tied to the amount of resources at stake.

What should you do if you believe an elder adult is being abused or neglected or exploited?

You are legally required to report to your local APS when you have reason to believe that a disabled adult is in need of protective services due to abuse or neglect, or for other reasons. N.C. Gen. Stat. 108A-102. A “disabled adult” shall be “in need of protective services” if “that person, due to his physical or mental incapacity, is unable to perform or obtain for himself essential services and if that person is without able, responsible, and willing persons to perform or obtain for his essential services.” N.C. Gen. Stat. 108A-101(e). Any person having reasonable cause to believe that a disabled adult is in need of protective services shall report such information to the director.

You may not be penalized for fulfilling this duty unless you act in bad faith: “Anyone who makes a report pursuant to this statute, who testifies in any judicial proceeding arising from the report, or who participates in a required evaluation shall be immune from any civil or criminal liability on account of such report or testimony or participation, unless such person acted in bad faith or with a malicious purpose.” N.C. Gen. Stat. 108A-102(c).

Contact your local county Social Services office to report suspected incidents of abuse or neglect. You may obtain contact information for the office from this website: http://www.ncdhhhs.gov/dss/local/. You may also contact the District Attorneys’ office or your local police when you suspect an elderly person is being abused.

Contact DHSR to complain about abuse and neglect in a long term care facility in North Carolina by mail: Complaint Intake Unit, 2711 Mail Service Center, Raleigh, NC 27699-2711, or by phone: Complaint Hotline: 1-800-624-3004 (within N.C.) or (919)855-4500, or by fax: (919)715-7724. You are not required to but may download complaint forms at http://www.ncdhhhs.gov/dhsr/ciu/filecomplaint.html.

In addition, you may also report your concerns about an elderly person who is a resident in long term care to the regional ombudsman for the person's location.

It is important to know, however, that (unlike DHSR, APS, and the criminal courts), the Ombudsmen have no regulatory authority. Long-Term Care Ombudsmen serve as advocates for residents in nursing homes and adult care homes (rest homes/assisted living) throughout North Carolina. The North Carolina Long Term Care Ombudsman Unit does not investigate allegations of abuse, neglect or exploitation. However, the Ombudsman Program will refer any necessary information pertaining to an allegation of abuse or neglect to the local county Department of Social Services Adult Protective. For more information about the ombudsman program or to locate your Ombudsman, please visit http://www.ncdhhhs.gov/aging/ombud/ombabuse.htm or call (919) 855-3400.

End Notes

1 Article 6, Chapter 108A of the North Carolina General Statutes requires that county departments of social services perform certain activities for disabled adults who are alleged to be abused, neglected or exploited and in need of protective services. In accordance with its authority under N.C. G.S. 143B-153, the North Carolina Social Services Commission has established rules and regulations for the provision of Protective Services for Adults with funds administered by the Division of Social Services.

2 Previously known as the Division of Facility Services (DFS).

3 These rights apply to residents in almost all of North Carolina’s nursing homes, as only a handful do not receive Medicare or Medicaid reimbursement.
Thinking about what happens to your family and how you provide for them after your injury, incapacity or death is a difficult process. However, the difficult decisions you make now will help your family make or even save your family from making these same difficult decisions later, when they are struggling to cope.

Most of us carry multiple forms of insurance to protect ourselves from a possible devastating loss: we have health insurance, car insurance, disability insurance, and homeowners insurance. Yet many of us have failed to plan for a certain devastating loss: what happens to our family after we die? For those who die without a Will, the State of North Carolina will direct how our hard-earned property passes after death. Oftentimes, this process is not only more cumbersome and expensive, but also fails to carry out our true intent. Having a Will is much like insurance, in that it can make sure our loved ones are looked after in the way we intend and direct, and in the case of individuals possessing higher net worth, may save substantial estate taxes.

Powers of Attorney are also important legal documents. They allow a trusted person to act in your place in the event you are incapacitated. Durable General Powers of Attorney ensure that someone you trust will be able to carry on your legal and business affairs. Similarly, Health Care Powers of Attorney ensure that someone you trust will make health care decisions for you if you cannot make those decisions for yourself.

Without Powers of Attorney, family members or friends may instead be forced to seek guardianship, which will involve a hearing and the presentation of evidence. Guardianship is another form of substitute decision-making, however guardianship procedures are generally much more inflexible and costly than having a well-drafted Power of Attorney.

Proper estate planning is as vital, if not more so, to our families as having good insurance. Estate planning will help our loved ones through a difficult and emotional event by saving them money and by reducing uncertainty and complexity. Many decisions will be made by our family members at a time when they are dealing with an emotionally difficult situation. Without proper planning, they will bear the additional burden of making those decisions while being unsure of what our wishes are. Discuss with your attorney the benefits of having a Will, Financial and Health Care Powers of Attorney, and a Living Will.

Powers of Attorney and Living Wills

A Power of Attorney is a legal document that grants authority to another person, called an “agent” or “attorney-in-fact,” to conduct business or make health care decisions on your behalf without a court order. In other words, this document authorizes substitute decision-making. Powers of Attorney may be immediately effective, or instead, become effective only upon, and only effective during, a period of incompetency or incapacity. In estate planning, a Power of Attorney will typically be drafted to survive your incapacity or incompetency, which generally avoids the burdensome, inflexible, expensive and public incompetency and guardianship procedures. If you do not have a Power of Attorney, a court will generally have to appoint a guardian to make health care and financial decisions for you during a period of incapacity or incompetency. Additionally, do not assume that simply because you are married, or have surviving family members, that they will be able to handle your affairs or make such decisions. Very often, these individuals will not be allowed to handle such matters on your behalf without a power of attorney designating such authority.

Having professionally drafted health care and financial Powers of Attorney will save your family a significant amount of expense and frustration. A good Power of Attorney is flexible enough to allow a trusted person to make important financial and health care decisions for you without obtaining court approval or having a surety bond.

General or Durable Powers of Attorney:

A General or Durable Power of Attorney usually refers to a power of attorney used for legal and financial matters. As these documents put a great deal of power into the hands of the named agent, you should be cautious about not only whom you name as the agent, but also about what powers are given to the agent. While certain broad powers, such as the ability to make gifts of your property to your family members, may be beneficial under certain planning situations, these types of powers can also be easily abused or used as a means of financial exploitation. It is important that you understand the powers given in your documents, so discussing your power of attorney with a lawyer is recommended.

Health Care Powers of Attorney & Living Wills:

Just as you can give another person the power to make legal and financial decisions, you can also give another person the power to make health care decisions. The Health Care Power of Attorney and Living Wills are discussed in the Health Care Section of the handbook entitled “Advance Directives.” (See Table of Contents for location).

Wills and Disposition of Property

A will is a legal declaration of a person’s wishes regarding the disposition of his or her property upon death. In North Carolina, the legal requirements of what paper writing qualifies as a Will are strictly enforced. To make a Will, a person must be at least 18 years old and of sound mind. The law imposes additional requirements depending on the type of Will, as discussed below.

Types Of Wills:

In North Carolina, there are three types of Wills: an attested written Will, a holographic Will, and an oral or nuncupative Will. An oral Will is extremely rare and is only effective in very particular circumstances, so it is not discussed here.

An attested written Will must be signed by the person making the Will (the “testator”) and attested by at least two competent witnesses. Strict requirements for witnessing the execution of a Will are enforced. A beneficiary under your Will should and must not be used as a witness since the beneficiary is an interested witness. If the Will does not have at least two disinterested witnesses, the interested witness will take nothing under the Will. At some point—when the Will is probated, if not earlier—the witnesses will have to affirm under oath that they saw the testator sign and that all additional requirements were met. Professionally drafted attested Wills are generally “self-proving,” meaning the witnesses make this sworn statement when the Will is signed, so the witnesses will not have to be found when the Will is admitted to probate (which may be years later).

A holographic Will must be entirely written and signed in your own handwriting. It does not have to be signed by witnesses, but it must be found among your valuable papers. It may also indicate your intent that it be your Will. North Carolina is one of the few remaining states which accepts a holographic Will as a valid Will; however, reliance upon a holographic Will is unadvisable since it often leads to confusion, or worse, litigation.

Why You Need A Will:

If you die without a Will, your state’s intestacy statute will dispose of your property, which will affect your family in several ways and possibly in ways you neither intend nor desire. As discussed in the section on “Rights of Surviving Spouse” below, you cannot completely disinherit your spouse or minor children, but in virtually every other way, you can dispose of your property however you like if you properly execute a valid Will. Having a Will can save your family or loved ones a great deal of financial instability and emotional trauma. With a Will, you direct who shall inherit your assets, in what shares, at what age, and in what manner, such as outright or in trust. You will specify who should handle your estate administration and the discretion they may have in doing so. Further, for individuals possessing higher net worth who will have taxable estates (see the section on Gift, Estate, and Inheritance Taxes below), a well-drafted estate plan could save your family hundreds of thousands of dollars in taxes alone. Quite simply, Wills are beneficial for all individuals in a variety of situations and a professionally drafted Will typically makes estate administration easier and less expensive.

If you die without a Will, your estate will pass by intestacy and will be governed by the Intestate Succession Act, which is a default, one-size-fits-all distribution scheme. Under this set of statutes, your property would pass to your spouse and/or children or parents, siblings, or other relatives in shares set by the statutes, without regard to your personal relationships or your relatives’ ability to handle assets. The Intestate Succession Act likely fails to meet your desired objectives regarding how you want your assets to pass, how you want to provide for your children or grandchildren, and how much authority and flexibility you want the person handling your estate to have at his or her disposal. For example, you may want to provide for a friend, charity, or a relative who is not in line to receive an intestate share, or you may decide that a particular relative should not receive anything. The Intestate Succession Act does not provide for such special distributions.

Non-traditional families are particularly adversely affected by state inheritance laws. Non-married couples are not entitled to any portion of their partner’s estate and will receive nothing under state law. This is true even in the case of a man and woman who have been living together in North Carolina for many years, as there is no “common law marriage” in this state (although North Carolina will respect a lawful common law marriage from another state). North Carolina and many other states only permit adoption by one person of each sex, so for many same-sex couples with children, one parent is not recognized by law. For such families, a child would inherit nothing under the Intestate Succession Act from the non-adoptive parent.

Dying without a Will is has additional consequences if you have minor children or grandchildren. In such circumstances, a guardian for your minor children or grandchildren must be appointed to manage any property they receive because of your death, including insurance proceeds, retirement assets, and real estate titled in your name. For example, if you are a single parent and own a home, or if you are married and your home is titled only in your name (rather than owned by you and your spouse together), your home will be owned at least partially by your children, or even your grandchildren, when you die. If they are minors, they cannot manage property on their own and a guardian must be appointed.
Guardianship of a minor requires court supervision, a formal annual accounting to the court, and an annual bond. If the guardian needs to take certain action, such as refinancing the home, a lawyer must be retained to file the necessary petition for approval by the court. The attorneys’ fees, bond premiums, guardian’s commissions, and other costs of administration will be paid out of the minor’s funds and will likely cost thousands of dollars. The reality is that the costs associated with a guardianship are significant and the procedures are frequently inflexible.

Moreover, when your children or grandchildren reach the age of 18, they will control all of their own inherited assets, generally at a time when they are too inexperienced or immature to handle this amount of money responsibly. A Will can establish a trust to provide management of these assets to continue to provide for the care and support of your children or grandchildren until they attain an age when you believe they can handle this property responsibly.

Writing Your Own Will Or Using A Computer Program:

The old adage that you get what you pay for certainly applies to this situation. It is possible, but highly inadvisable to have your own hand written Will in North Carolina. It is also possible to use a computer program to help you with a Will. However, North Carolina law is very strict in its requirements for what document qualifies as a Will; therefore, the document you create on your own may not meet these requirements. As a harsh consequence, the directions and wishes you express in a document that fails to meet North Carolina’s legal requirements for Wills shall not have any legal effect. And if there is any question whether a document qualifies as a Will, a costly estate proceeding may be necessary.

A professionally drafted Will has the benefit of experience and clarity. Having a professionally drawn Will generally makes estate administration easier and less expensive, and should avoid litigation. If your Will is unclear or ambiguous, your loved ones may become embroiled in litigation and much of your estate will be paid to the attorneys hired to fight these issues in court, rather than to the loved ones you intended to receive those assets.

If you would like to leave a gift from your estate for someone receiving governmental benefits (for example, Medicaid), it is particularly important to discuss this with an experienced estate planning attorney, as receiving such a gift outright might disqualify your loved one from the benefit program.

Rights Of Surviving Spouse:

State law prohibits surviving spouses being completely disinherited. A surviving spouse must receive a certain minimum amount of his or her spouse’s estate, regardless of what may be written in the deceased spouse’s Will.

Surviving spouses are entitled to a one-time “spousal allowance” of at least $20,000 for support and maintenance after the death of a deceased spouse, if the estate of the deceased spouse is large enough. Children under 18, disabled children under 21, and school-enrolled children under 22 are entitled to $2000 each. (The children’s allowance is scheduled to increase to $5000 per child for estates of persons who die on or after July 1, 2013.) These allowances are paid from the cash or other personal property in the deceased person’s estate if possible, free from any claims against the estate. If there is not enough personal property to completely pay the allowances, the balance should be paid out of the rest of the estate, if possible.

The surviving spouse is entitled to an “elective share,” or a fraction of the net value of the estate (total value of property minus total value of claims against the estate) minus any amount received by the surviving spouse as part of the spousal allowance or under the deceased spouse’s will. In essence, the elective share ensures that the surviving spouse receives a certain portion of the deceased spouse’s estate, although that portion may be partly or entirely made up of the spousal allowance and a bequest or devise in the Will.

What that fraction is—one-sixth, one-fourth, one-third, or one-half—depends on family circumstances. If the deceased spouse had one child or none at all, the elective share is generally one-half. If the deceased spouse is survived by more than one child or by the descendants of more than one child, then the elective share is generally one-third. In either case, if the couple had no children and the deceased spouse is survived by a child from a prior marriage (or such child’s children), the applicable share fraction is cut in half. Thus, the applicable share for a second spouse in a childless marriage when the deceased spouse leaves two children from a prior marriage is one sixth (1/2 x 1/3 = 1/6).

As noted above, the rules for calculating an elective share can be complicated. For example, a deceased spouse’s total net assets include more than the probate property passing under the deceased spouse’s Will (or by state law if he or she died without a Will) and must be carefully reviewed. In addition, there are legal deadlines (generally within six months from when the estate is opened) in which a surviving spouse must file a petition to claim an elective share. A surviving spouse may petition for more than $20,000 for the spousal allowance, and may elect to claim a life estate in part of the deceased spouse’s real property (their shared home, at least) instead of the elective share. If you feel that your spouse has attempted to disinherit you or that you may be entitled to more than the amounts received under your spouse’s Will, you should contact a lawyer experienced in estate administration matters to help review your options.

Changing Your Will And Other Estate Planning Documents:

Once your estate planning documents have been properly executed, do not doodle on them, make hand-written changes to them, or attempt to modify them in any way. If you want something changed, talk to your attorney. You will most likely have to execute new documents or a codicil (amendment) to your Will to effect the changes. It is critical to make changes in a legally enforceable manner, since if you attempt to modify these documents yourself, it may appear to be a revocation, making the entire document worthless, ineffective, or legally confusing and ambiguous.

A legally effective codicil Will allow everything in your Will to stay the same except for the parts which are changed by the codicil. Whether you change your Will with a codicil or by executing an entirely new Will, the document must meet the strict testamentary formalities already discussed. Signing a new Will normally revokes any earlier Will. If a new Will is executed, it is a good idea to destroy the old Will completely.

Safeguarding Your Documents:

It is important that your heirs know where to locate your Will and other estate documents. These documents should be kept in a fire-safe box in your home, a safe deposit box, or your attorney’s fire-proof vault. Keeping your documents at home provides easy access, but the documents are at greater risk of loss or destruction. Keeping your documents in a safe deposit box or at your attorney’s office provides greater safety from loss or fire, a greater likelihood of discovery, and more privacy. However, note that only a joint tenant of a safe deposit box will be able to access the document after your death without a valid Power of Attorney or court intervention. Additionally, your Powers of Attorney and Living Will may need to be accessed during the evening or weekends, when it is not possible to reach the documents at your bank or your attorney’s office.

Probate and Estate Administration

What is Probate?

Generally, probate is the process by which the court determines whether a person died with or without a Will and manages the distribution of assets after death. Following a person’s death, the estate administration process will require that creditors receive notice of the person’s death, that creditors have a short time period to file claims, and that probate property (and in some cases, certain non-probate property) be used to pay lawful debts. The property remaining after debts, expenses, and costs of administration are paid will go to the decedent’s heirs at law or, in the case of a Will, to the decedent’s chosen beneficiaries. Probate fees are currently set at a statutory maximum of $6,000.

Non-Probate Property and Property Ownership:

Probate does not cover all property: pay-on-death contracts such as life insurance, retirement accounts, as well as survivorship property such as certain real estate, bank accounts or shares of stock, are generally referred to as “non-probate property”. Non-probate property passes automatically upon operation of law or by contract to a named beneficiary and does not pass through the probate process.

If you own any property, accounts, or contracts that will pass to a named beneficiary, it is important to review your beneficiary designations to ensure that you have named both a primary and contingent beneficiary to receive the property. Births, deaths, divorce and other life changes will often affect whom you intend to receive these assets, but if you do not change your beneficiary designations, an unintended or undesired beneficiary may receive them. Further, if a beneficiary is not designated, or if the designated beneficiary has died with no contingent beneficiary named, then this otherwise non-probate property may pass to your estate as the default beneficiary. As a result, it will have to pass through the probate process and be subject to probate fees and claims of creditors.

The structure of ownership of property affects its status as “probate” or “non-probate” property. You can own property by yourself or jointly with your spouse or other person. Many types of property may be owned in such a way that the interest held by one owner will automatically pass upon death to the remaining owners, which is known as “survivorship property”. The transfer of this interest occurs automatically upon death and without the necessity of probate. The right of survivorship must be selected by the joint owners in the creating document, usually a deed or written contract. Common survivorship property includes jointly owned real property, bank accounts, and shares of stock.

In North Carolina, if you own real property (land and the buildings on it) as husband and wife, your interest in that property is known as a “tenancy by the entirety”. This means that you and your spouse own the property as a marital unit, and upon death, your part of the property will automatically pass to the surviving spouse. It is not a good idea to try to Will property that you and your spouse own together to another person, because at your death, your share of the property will go automatically to your spouse. If you want another person to inherit real property at your death, it is best to change your tenancy by the entirety to a tenancy in common by executing a deed. You and your spouse can do this through a lawyer.

Please note, however, that real property that you and another person own together without right of survivorship, called a “tenancy in common,” is probate property. In North Carolina, tenancy in common is the most common type of concurrent ownership of real property other than that between spouses. A tenancy in common is not survivorship property; therefore, the interest of one owner will not automatically pass to the remaining owner upon death. Each owner of this type of property is entitled to have equal access to the property, even if the ownership interests are different. Additionally, unlike survivorship property, each owner’s interest may be separately sold, encumbered, or given at death by a Will through the probate process.

Small Estate Administration:
When a person dies with or without a Will and the value of the personal property in the estate does not exceed $20,000, or $30,000 if there is a surviving spouse, there is a simplified administration procedure. Under this procedure, any person who is an heir, creditor, devisee or executor (if the decedent had a Will) of the decedent can file an affidavit in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of the county where the decedent lived at the time of his death, and the affidavit will be sufficient to recover and transfer property. Forms for making this affidavit, known as an affidavit for collection of personal property of the decedent, are available from the Clerk of Superior Court.

Living Trusts

A trust is an arrangement where one person or entity called a “trustee” holds legal title to property for the benefit of another person called the “beneficiary”. A person who transfers assets to a trustee to be held in trust is referred to as the “grantor”. The term “living trust” simply means a written trust arrangement established by the grantor during his or her lifetime. Living trusts frequently name the grantor and the grantor’s spouse as the first beneficiaries and their children and grandchildren as beneficiaries after both the grantor and grantor’s spouse have died, but a living trust can be set up for any beneficiaries. A grantor can revoke a living trust at any time during his or her life, so living trusts are also sometimes called “revocable trusts” or “revocable inter vivos trusts”. A grantor can also make an irrevocable trust during his or her lifetime, but this is generally not referred to as a “living trust”. Finally, a trust may be included in a person’s Will and drafted so as not to take effect until after a person dies. Such trusts are called “testamentary trusts”.

In some situations, a living trust can be an effective estate planning tool. However, you need to be aware of what living trusts can and cannot do for you. Be careful. Some groups try to “sell” living trusts as the simple solution to every estate planning problem. They are not. Some say living trusts protect your assets from taxes and from creditors. They may not do the living trust properly used can help you and your family. If you are concerned that you may not be able to manage your property during your lifetime (for example, if you face Alzheimer’s disease, or some other debilitating illness or accident), a properly drafted living trust can be useful regardless of the size of your estate. Similarly, you may want to use a living trust to keep your estate confidential. Your Will becomes a matter of public record, along with the size of your probate estate and what you are leaving to your beneficiaries, while a living trust is a private agreement that keeps this information confidential. A living trust can help provide professional management of your assets during your lifetime. In addition, if you have real estate in states other than North Carolina, a living trust can be utilized to avoid probate for non-N.C. real estate.

If you decide to establish a living trust, you will need to decide who you want to serve as trustee. Most grantors of living trusts will serve as their own trustees as long as you can in order to reduce expenses, but the trust document should name at least one or more successor trustee. Any person can serve as trustee. If you don’t want to put a friend or family member in that position, you can name a corporate trustee or professional trustee. In North Carolina, only banks empowered to conduct trust business and trust companies are authorized to serve as a corporate trustee and solicitor trust business. You should know that most corporate trustees will charge annual fees for trust services, frequently anywhere from 0.75% to 4.0% of the assets involved (such as a family partnership) may reduce estate taxes; this is something to discuss with your estate planning attorney if you think your estate will be large enough to potentially incur taxes. Furthermore, revocable living trusts do not protect your assets from your creditors or health care costs. If this is your goal, you should consult an attorney about an irrevocable trust or other types of planning. However, living trusts can be utilized to protect the assets that you leave to your beneficiaries from creditors or health care costs. Finally, a revocable living trust does not help qualify you for Medicaid benefits, since the trust property and income will be treated as if you own them directly.

A living trust can be funded with many types of assets. Whether to purchase life insurance and how much coverage is necessary should be decided independently of the decision to establish a living trust.

You may be offered a living trust kit to purchase, and be told that doing so will save substantial attorneys’ fees. Although the services of an experienced estate planning attorney can be expensive, some of these kits are also expensive. Many living trusts and other estate planning documents being marketed by non-attorneys are very poorly written and will create burdensome legal and tax problems. Before you buy a living trust kit, you should talk with an attorney to determine whether you are actually saving money or creating more problems later.

Taking all of this into account, you should know that a living trust properly used can help you and your family. If you are concerned that you may not be able to manage your property during your lifetime (for example, if you face Alzheimer’s disease, or some other debilitating illness or accident), a properly drafted living trust can be useful regardless of the size of your estate. Similarly, you may want to use a living trust to keep your estate confidential. Your Will becomes a matter of public record, along with the size of your probate estate and what you are leaving to your beneficiaries, while a living trust is a private agreement that keeps this information confidential. A living trust can help provide professional management of your assets during your lifetime. In addition, if you have real estate in states other than North Carolina, a living trust can be utilized to avoid probate for non-N.C. real estate.
Guardianship

Guardianship is another means of substitute decision-making during a period of a person’s incompetence or incapacity; generally, these proceedings are initiated in the absence of Powers of Attorney or in cases where there is suspected abuse by a named attorney-in-fact. Adults are presumed competent to make decisions, however, those decisions may be, and all of us, as adults, have the freedom to make bad decisions. However, a person may be rendered unable to make informed, voluntary decisions because of illness, injury, or incapacity. Guardianship is another means of protecting such an individual, even if less preferable than a well-drafted Power of Attorney.

Any person may file an incompetency and guardianship proceeding, whether or not the alleged incompetent person has previously executed a Power of Attorney. As a practical matter, however, the majority of incompetency and guardianship proceedings are filed because a person has not executed valid Powers of Attorney and can no longer make informed, voluntary decisions.

An adult must be adjudged incompetent by the Clerk of Superior Court, based on admissible evidence that meets the “clear, cogent, and convincing” burden of proof. An attorney, known as the “guardian ad litem,” is appointed to represent the best interests of the alleged incompetent person. A formal trial will be held by the Clerk of Superior Court and the alleged incompetent person may request a jury trial. Obviously, this adversarial proceeding may cause a great deal of trauma to alleged incompetent person and his or her family.

In the event a person is determined to be incompetent, at least one guardian will be appointed by the Clerk. After hearing the evidence, the clerk may appoint a guardian of the person, guardian of the estate or a general guardian. A “guardian of the person” is appointed when someone cannot take care of his or her own personal needs. A “guardian of the estate” is appointed if someone cannot handle his or her own business or financial affairs. A “general guardian” is someone who acts in both roles. One person can be appointed guardian or a separate person can be named to each role.

The guardian of the estate must post a bond, payable to the State of North Carolina, to insure faithful execution of his or her duties. A guardian of an estate must manage the business and financial affairs of the incompetent person in a prudent manner. The guardian must give an annual report each year of the receipts, disbursements, investments and other transactions made that year. Court approval for certain actions is required, including the sale of real property and many other investments or expenditures. In order to obtain court approval for the sale of real property, a special proceeding must be filed and generally an attorney must be retained to file the special proceeding with the court. Approval of other transactions, such as spending money for the incompetent person, is obtained by filing a petition with the clerk but does not necessarily require a hearing.

Guardianship generally supersedes a Power of Attorney, although a Power of Attorney may nominate the agent to be appointed guardian. The court generally appoints the nominated guardian from a Power of Attorney unless “good cause” is shown to appoint someone else. In such cases, it is a good idea for the newly appointed Guardian to revoke the prior Power of Attorney.

Testamentary Trusts

As noted above, you can create a trust in your Will—a “testamentary trust.” One major purpose of testamentary trusts is to prepare for the possibility that the parents of a young child will both die before the child is old enough to handle his or her own assets. Parents will frequently leave all of their assets to each other, so that if one dies, the other will be provided for and will be able to take care of their children. But in the situation where the other spouse also dies, the assets may be put into a trust for their children, generally until the children reach a certain age. If such a trust is not set up, the assets will be distributed to the children once they turn 18.

Another major purpose of a testamentary trust is to leave some inheritance to a disabled relative or friend without disqualifying them from receiving governmental benefits. An outright gift may disqualify the beneficiary from receiving benefits, forcing the beneficiary to spend the gift and then go through the qualification procedure again. Through a carefully drawn trust, you may be able to leave such a friend or loved one something for fun and in remembrance of you without triggering this unfortunate consequence.
Once an individual has been declared incompetent, that individual can petition the court for a restoration of competency. The proceeding is similar to the original proceeding as the individual can be represented by counsel or a guardian ad litem, and can request a trial by jury. If the clerk or jury finds the individual to be competent, the clerk will enter an order that the individual is restored to competency and the individual may handle his or her affairs again.

Gift, Estate and Inheritance Taxes

Gift Tax:
When you give property away, you may have to pay a gift tax. Federal law requires you to file gift tax returns if you give more than $13,000 in value to any one person (other than your spouse, provided your spouse is a U.S. citizen) in a single year. If you are married, you and your spouse may make a joint gift of $26,000 to any one person, per year, without giving rise to any federal gift tax. The $13,000 Federal annual exclusion amount is indexed for inflation and increases every few years. North Carolina repealed its state gift tax in 2009.

If you have an estate large enough that it will be subject to estate tax at your death, you may want to take advantage of the opportunity to make annual exclusion gifts during your lifetime as a way to transfer funds out of your estate. Each person can make tax-free gifts of $13,000 to any number of individuals in a given year. Typically, people make such gifts to their children and grandchildren. When used aggressively, annual exclusion gifts can be used to transfer a significant sum of money out of your estate each year. Every dollar transferred out of your estate is a dollar that won’t be subject to estate tax at your death.

Federal Estate Tax:
When you die, everything you owned at the time of your death becomes part of your taxable estate. An estate includes the house, land, cars, household goods, furniture, jewelry, money, clothes, retirement or pension plans, IRAs and any other property which you owned or held some interest in when you died. Also included in your estate are the proceeds of any life insurance policies you owned on your own life. However, only very large estates that exceed the “Applicable Exclusion Amount” (defined below) will be taxed by the federal government.

On Dec. 17, 2010, Congress passed the Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization, and Job Creation Act of 2010 (TRA 2010), which established an Applicable Exclusion Amount of $5 million per person for 2011 and $5.12 million for 2012. If the value of your estate exceeds this amount, the portion of your estate exceeding this amount will be taxed at a rate of 35% (except that amounts left to your spouse are not taxed in your estate). TRA 2010 also allowed for portability, which allows a surviving spouse to use a predeceased spouse’s unused Applicable Exclusion Amount.

However, TRA 2010 was written to sunset at the end of 2012. If Congress does not pass any new legislation addressing the federal estate tax, in 2013 and thereafter, the Applicable Exclusion Amount will be $1 million per person with a tax rate of 55%. Observers are unsure as to what path Congress will take on this issue and its decision, or lack thereof, may necessitate a change in your estate plan.

Ultimately, unless your spouse is not a US citizen, any property that passes to your spouse is not taxed by the federal government in your estate, no matter how large of an amount. However, large amounts left to a spouse may trigger significant estate taxes in your spouse’s estate upon their death. If you have a large estate, careful planning can significantly reduce estate taxes.

If you have general questions about the federal estate tax, you can call the Internal Revenue Service at its toll free number (1-800-829-1040). For more specific questions and advice about your own estate planning needs, consult an attorney experienced in tax and estate planning.

North Carolina Inheritance Tax and Estate Tax:
Until recently, North Carolina imposed an inheritance tax based on the relationship of the person who received the property to the deceased. North Carolina has now repealed this tax.

Although North Carolina has repealed the inheritance tax, it still maintains an estate tax with an exemption amount equal to the federal Applicable Exclusion Amount. If any federal estate taxes are due, North Carolina estate taxes are deductible against the federal estate tax.

Most estate and inheritance tax returns are prepared by accountants or attorneys. If you need specific advice, you should consult an attorney experienced in estate administration matters.

Veterans Affairs

The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is charged with administering benefits programs for veterans of the United States Armed Forces and their families. Eligibility for many VA benefits is determined by when you served in the military and the length of time served, provided you were not dishonorably discharged. Even if you were dishonorably discharged, you may be entitled to certain benefits and should apply to the VA for a discharge upgrade.

Disability Compensation: In order to get disability compensation from the VA your disability must have been the result of an injury or illness which began, or was aggravated, during a period of military service.

Monthly compensation payments are made according to a VA disability rating schedule. Payments may be made to fiduciaries of eligible veterans.
Veterans Pensions: In certain circumstances, a monthly pension is available if you are permanently and totally disabled even if that disability has nothing to do with former military service. Veterans age 65 and older are considered disabled for purposes of VA pension eligibility. Payment benefits are also available to widowed spouses of eligible veterans.

In order to receive pension benefits, you must have completed 90 days of military service, part of which occurred during a wartime period as defined by law. If you were discharged because of a service-connected disability with less than 90 days of military service, you are also eligible. Veterans who entered active duty on or after Sept. 8, 1980, or officers who entered active duty on or after Oct. 16, 1981, may have to meet a longer minimum period of active duty.

Medical Care: VA Medical Centers provide a full range of hospital and outpatient care, including limited home health care. VA medical care is available to all eligible veterans, but to be eligible, veterans who enlisted after Sept. 7, 1980, or who entered active duty after Oct. 16, 1981, must have served 24 continuous months or the full period for which they were called to active duty (but this requirement may be waived for veterans discharged for hardship, early out or a disability incurred or aggravated in the line of duty). First priority is given to veterans with a service related disability. This is the case whether you are seeking medical treatment for a service related disability or for another medical condition.

Charges for VA medical treatment are generally based on your ability to pay. Some veterans are treated free of charge. If your income is high, the VA may submit charges for medical treatment to your private insurance company. You may have a co-pay requirement, based on your income and priority level.

Other Benefits: Eligibility requirements vary for other VA benefits. These benefits include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Reimbursement for burial expenses;
2. Life insurance;
3. A grant to adapt a home to accommodate a veteran’s physical handicap;
4. A grant to purchase an automobile or for other conveyance or automobile adaptive equipment for veterans with certain kinds of physical or mobility losses or permanent disabilities;
5. Interment in a national cemetery;
6. An annual clothing allowance for a veteran who uses prosthetic or orthopedic appliances or whose medication for a skin condition damages clothing;
7. Educational assistance, including a percentage of tuition and fees as well as a housing allowance and some other costs;
8. Vocational training and rehabilitation
9. Home loan guaranty benefits
10. Civil service preference for the veteran and veteran’s spouse, surviving spouse, or mother; and

Where To Call For Help

Federal Veterans Benefits:
For information or assistance in applying for veterans benefits, write or call as described below:

Online: www.va.gov

Telephone Inquiries: Consult your local telephone directory under United States Government, Department of Veterans Affairs or use this toll-free number to reach a VA Representative: 1-800-827-1000.

Insurance Information Hotline: Toll-free telephone service is available to policyholders and beneficiaries in the life insurance programs. The number is 1-800-419-1473 for service members and/or the Veterans Group Life Insurance Program and 1-800-669-8477 for all other VA life insurance programs.

Write to or visit the following address:
Veterans Administration Regional Office
Federal Building
251 North Main Street
Winston-Salem, NC 27155
1-800-827-1000

N.C. Veterans Benefits:
State Veterans Benefits: North Carolina offers benefits to veterans which are independent of federal benefits. Eligibility may depend on whether an individual resided in North Carolina at the time of enlisting in the armed forces. State benefits may include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Some relief from income and property taxes, particularly for disabled veterans;
2. Scholarships for children of certain categories of deceased, disabled, combat or POW/MIA veterans at certain state educational institutions or private institutions;
3. Employment preference for veterans, spouses or surviving spouses with state departments, agencies or institutions; and
4. Special license plates for disabled veterans, prisoners of war, purple heart recipients and Pearl Harbor survivors.

Online: http://www.doa.nc.gov/vets/benefits.aspx

Telephone Inquiries: Consult your local telephone directories under State Government, Veterans Affairs, for the telephone number of a state representative or call the VA toll-free number or contact the VA North Carolina regional office in Winston-Salem at the address listed above.
If you are accused of a crime, you are entitled to the services of a lawyer, even if you cannot afford one. A public defender or a private lawyer may be appointed by the court to represent you. But what if you need a lawyer for a civil case and you do not have a private lawyer? There are a number of ways to find a lawyer to help you. Perhaps the best way is to talk with your friends and relatives to find out about which lawyer or law firm they use, and what their experiences have been. There are a number of other sources, too. If you do not have a lawyer, you can contact the North Carolina Lawyer Referral Service, which is sponsored by the North Carolina Bar Association. Based on the information you provide, you will receive the name and telephone number of an appropriate attorney with whom you can meet to discuss your problem. The lawyer will meet with you for a nominal fee for up to one-half hour. If additional legal work is required you may decide to hire the attorney, and you would be responsible for any additional fees. You can contact the Lawyer Referral Service at:

North Carolina Lawyer Referral Service
North Carolina Bar Association
P.O. Box 3688, Cary, NC 27519
(919) 677-0561 or 1-800-662-7407
www.ncfindalawyer.org

Legal Services may also help with legal problems concerning consumer debts and contracts, civil rights, divorce, child custody, adoptions, name changes, workers’ compensation and bankruptcy. Check with your local Legal Aid office to see what kinds of cases that office handles.

Legal Aid serves all 100 counties in North Carolina through a network of 25 area offices. Each office serves a specific region of the state. The Legal Aid offices in North Carolina are:

Legal Aid of North Carolina – Statewide Central Office
224 S. Dawson Street
P.O. Box 26087,
Raleigh, NC 27611
(919) 856-2564
www.legalaidnc.org/

Ahoskie Office
610 E. Church Street
Ahoskie, NC 27910
(252) 332-5124 or 1-866-219-5262
Counties Served: Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Northampton, Pasquotank and Perquimans.

Asheville Office
547 Haywood Road
Asheville, NC 28806
1-866-219-5262
Senior Legal Helpline (age 60 or older): 1-877-579-7562 (toll-free, Monday-Friday, 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m.)
Counties Served: Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Buncombe, Henderson, Madison, Mitchell, Polk, Rutherford, Transylvania, Watauga, Wilkes and Yancey

Charlotte Office
1431 Elizabeth Avenue
Charlotte, NC 28204-2506
(704) 971-2621 or 1-800-738-3868
County Served: Mecklenburg

Wake Forest University School of Law Elder Law Clinic
Sticht Center, Medical Center Blvd.
Winston-Salem, NC 27157-1207
Phone: (336) 713-8630
Fax: (336) 713-8632
http://elder-clinic.law.wfu.edu

Legal Services for the Elderly
Mecklenburg County Bar
438 Queens Road
Charlotte, NC 28207
(704) 375-0120
www.meckbar.org/lawyerreferral

Another resource is a Legal Aid (formerly Legal Services) lawyer, if you meet their income guidelines. If you qualify for Legal Aid, and your case meets certain other requirements, the services of a lawyer or paralegal are provided free of charge. A Legal Aid lawyer may help you solve legal problems about your Social Security, Supplemental Security Insurance, housing, food stamps, Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC), housing or unemployment. Legal Services may also help with legal problems concerning consumer debts and contracts, civil rights, divorce, child custody, adoptions, name changes, workers’ compensation and bankruptcy. Check with your local Legal Aid office to see what kinds of cases that office handles.

Legal Aid serves all 100 counties in North Carolina through a network of 25 area offices. Each office serves a specific region of the state. The Legal Aid offices in North Carolina are:

Legal Aid of North Carolina – Statewide Central Office
224 S. Dawson Street
P.O. Box 26087,
Raleigh, NC 27611
(919) 856-2564
www.legalaidnc.org/

Ahoskie Office
610 E. Church Street
Ahoskie, NC 27910
(252) 332-5124 or 1-866-219-5262
Counties Served: Bertie, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Halifax, Hertford, Northampton, Pasquotank and Perquimans.

Asheville Office
547 Haywood Road
Asheville, NC 28806
1-866-219-5262
Senior Legal Helpline (age 60 or older): 1-877-579-7562 (toll-free, Monday-Friday, 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m.)
Counties Served: Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Buncombe, Henderson, Madison, Mitchell, Polk, Rutherford, Transylvania, Watauga, Wilkes and Yancey

Charlotte Office
1431 Elizabeth Avenue
Charlotte, NC 28204-2506
(704) 971-2621 or 1-800-738-3868
County Served: Mecklenburg
Farmworker Unit – Legal Aid of North Carolina
224 S. Dawson Street
Post Office Box 26626
Raleigh, NC 27611
(919) 856-2180 or 1-800-777-5869
Program to meet the special needs of migrant and seasonal farm workers in North Carolina.

Legal Aid of North Carolina, Inc.
www.legalaidnc.org

Senior Law Project (SLP)
1-877-579-7562
Established as part of the Federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, the North Carolina Client Assistance Program (CAP) is a federally funded program designed to assist individuals with disabilities in understanding and using rehabilitation services.

CAP
2806 Mail Service Center
Raleigh, NC 27699-2806
805 Ruggles Dr.
Raleigh NC 27603

Phone 919-855-3600 Email- NCCAP@dhhs.nc.gov
http://cap.state.nc.us/

NC MedAssist seeks to improve the health and the lives of low-income individuals and families by providing free medications and high quality pharmaceutical services to the uninsured in all 100 counties of North Carolina.

Main Office/Pharmacy Location:
601 E. 5th St., Suite 350
Charlotte, NC 28202
704-536-1790 main line
704-536-9865 office fax

NC Department of Veterans Affairs Service Officers http://www.doa.state.nc.us/vets/locations/

North Carolina Division of Aging and Adult Services
Taylor Hall, 693 Palmer Drive
2101 Mail Service Center,
Raleigh, NC 27699-2101
Telephone: (919) 855-3400
http://www.ncdhhs.gov/aging/index.htm

Nursing Home Compare This tool has detailed information about every Medicare and Medicaid-certified nursing home in the country. Before you get started, you or your family member may have other long-term care choices like community-based services, home care, or assisted living depending on your needs and resources.

http://www.medicare.gov/NHCompare/home.asp

Friends of Residents in Long Term Care is a nonprofit charitable organization committed to advancing quality of life in North Carolina's long-term care facilities. We advocate for changes in public policy, support families of long-term care residents, and help build public awareness in North Carolina about issues facing long-term care residents and their families.

883-C Washington Street
Raleigh NC 27605
919.782.1530 (office)
919.782.1558 (fax)
1-888-411-7571 (Toll Free)
friends@forltc.org

Elder Law Specialists
http://www.nclawspecialists.gov/results.asp?SpecialtyID=1113

Medicaid Website
http://www.medicaid.gov/index.html
acknowledgment: A sworn statement before a public official, usually a notary public, declaring that a legal document is signed freely and that any statements in the document are accurate. The statutory forms for North Carolina living wills, health care powers of attorney and durable powers of attorney all require acknowledgment.

attorney-in-fact: The person or organization designated in a power of attorney to act for the principal. This person or organization is also referred to as an agent. The agent has whatever power the principal authorizes, and can act to benefit or bind the principal and could be liable to the principal or a third party for a breach of that duty.

beneficiary: One who benefits from the act of another. This describes a person who is eligible to receive distributions of trust property or income, i.e., a beneficiary of a trust.

conservator: An individual appointed by the court to make decisions regarding property on behalf of someone else. (Although in North Carolina usually the term “guardian” is used).

declaration of a desire for a natural death: A written document governed by the living will statute, which sets forth the wishes of a person with respect to artificial life-support systems and continuation of medical care in the event of terminal illness or continuing vegetative state. (See living will).

durable power of attorney: A written document indicating that the agency survives subsequent incapacity or disability of the principal, or which becomes effective upon incapacity or disability. (See power of attorney).

encumber: To place a claim, lien, charge or liability on property (e.g., mortgage, judgment lien, mechanic's lien, security interest).

fiduciary duty: The duty to act on behalf of, and in the interest of, another person. For example, an agent owes a fiduciary duty to his principal.

grantor: The person who establishes and funds a trust. (In North Carolina, the term “grantor” is also used in real estate deeds to describe a person who sells real property to another. Recording a deed following the sale of real estate does not create a trust.)

guardian: A court-appointed decision-maker who has powers to make decisions concerning the personal affairs and property of an incapacitated individual. The guardianship may be limited to personal decisions only (a “guardian of the person”) or to financial and personal decisions only (a “guardian of the estate”).

health care power of attorney: A medical power of attorney by which the principal designates an agent to make health-care decisions if the principal cannot communicate his decisions.

incapacitated: A term used to describe a person who lacks the ability to make a decision concerning health care or, more generally, any personal decisions. For health care decisions, there are two levels of determining incapacity: at the medical level where the decision is made by a health-care professional; and at the judicial level where the decision is a legal one.

incompetency: A legal term describing someone who lacks decisional capacity. When a person has a guardian appointed by a court, the person is often referred to as “incompetent.” Incompetency also describes a legal disability to perform a specific act or acts.

inter vivos: This term is used in a transfer of property, or other transaction, which occurs between living persons. For example, a gift of property made during a person's lifetime is an inter vivos gift.

intestacy: The state or condition of dying without having made a valid will, or without having disposed by will of a part of your property.

irrevocable trust: A trust by which a grantor (the person creating a trust) transfers title of the trust property to the trustee and reserves no right to cancel, alter or abolish the trust.

joint account: An account or deposit in a financial institution held in two or more names.

joint tenancy with right of survivorship: A way of holding property (e.g., bank accounts, stocks or bonds) with another person or persons, so that the survivors become the owners of the accounts regardless of the provisions of the decedent's will. Sometimes abbreviated as “JTWROS.” Some JTWROS accounts are subject, at least in part, to claims of a decedent's creditors.

living trust: Term commonly used to refer to a revocable trust. (See revocable trust).
living will: The document which states the person’s views about artificial life-support decisions. Also known as a declaration of a desire for a natural death. North Carolina has a statutory form of a living will, upon which physicians are authorized to rely.

long-term care facility: Any residential facility which is considered a permanent home and in which some degree of medical attention is provided. Most often, people associate this term with nursing homes, rest homes and assisted living facilities.

notary public: A public official authorized to accept oaths affirming that the contents of documents are freely made and accurately recorded.

personal property: Generally refers to movable property; anything other than land or houses.

P.O.D. account: Payable on death, i.e., an account held as “John Doe payable on death to Jane Doe.”

post-nuptial agreement: Post-nuptial agreements or settlements are made after marriage between couples still married; they take the form of separation agreements, property settlements in contemplation of a separation or divorce, or property settlements where there is no intention of the parties to separate.

power of attorney: The instrument which represents the agency agreement by which one individual (the principal) authorizes another person or organization (the attorney-in-fact) to act in his or her place. Only a power of attorney that expressly provides that it continues beyond the principal’s becoming incompetent is a “durable power of attorney.” All powers of attorney (durable or otherwise) end at the principal’s death.

pre-nuptial agreement: An agreement entered into by prospective spouses prior to, and in contemplation of, marriage. Under this agreement, the property rights of one or both of the prospective spouses are established or waived.

principal: An individual authorizing another individual or organization to act in his or her place.

probate: All matters and proceedings pertaining to the administration of the estate of a deceased person.

real property: Land or anything growing or fixed on it.

revocable trust: A trust created by a grantor during his life, which expressly allows the grantor to amend or revoke the trust.

right of survivorship: A method of joint ownership where the surviving joint owner(s) gets title to the deceased owner’s interest.

springing power of attorney: A durable power of attorney which becomes effective only upon the principal’s incapacity or some other event.

SSA: Social Security Administration which administers social security retirement, disability and survivors’ benefits, as well as the SSI program.

SSI: Supplemental Security Income, a federal cash payment program which provides monthly payments on the basis of need to poor persons who are aged, blind or disabled.

testamentary: Providing for the disposition of property after death by a will and therefore in accordance with the personal desires of a decedent. Formalities in the North Carolina statute must be complied with in order for the disposition to be approved and not subject to challenge.

testator: One who dies leaving a will.
Additional copies of the Senior Citizens Handbook may be obtained for a nominal fee by writing Jacquelyn Terrell at the North Carolina Bar Association, P.O. Box 3688, Cary, NC 27519; calling 1-800-662-7407; or emailing jterrell@ncbar.org.

This publication is made possible by a grant from the North Carolina Bar Association Foundation Endowment. North Carolina lawyers serving the public and the profession. © 2012 North Carolina Bar Association. All rights reserved.